Van Fleet Says U. S. Troops In Korea Are Short Of Ammunition

Byrd Urges Those Responsible Be Punished For Their Neglect

WASHINGTON, March 5 (AP)—Gen. James A. Van Fleet told Congress today American troops in Korea have been handicapped by a "serious shortage" of ammunition including hand grenades needed for close-in fighting on the battlefront.

Sen. Byrd (D-Va) promptly dispatched an urgent message to Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson demanding that the Pentagon punish officials responsible for what he termed "this criminal inefficiency."

Has Urgent Attention

Defense Secretary Wilson's office said he has already been giving "urgent attention" to the reported serious shortage of ammunition in Korea.

Bristling with anger, Byrd told newsmen that in all his 20 years in the Senate he had "never been more shocked" than he was by testimony given by the former commander of U. N. forces in Korea at a closed-door session of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

"Gen. Van Fleet testified this shortage (of ammunition) has been continuous since he took command and that almost daily he had reported it officially and through channels," the Virginia senator wrote Wilson.

"Failure to supply these munitions, according to Gen. Van Fleet, seriously handicapped not only the prosecution of the war against Communist Chinese and North Koreans, but also the protection of our own troops.

His testimony about ammunition shortages was in seeming conflict with testimony he gave yesterday that there are "no shortages of a serious nature" in supplies for troops in Korea. There was no explanation of the apparent contradiction.

Jobs At High Command

The four-star general caused a stir today with several veiled jabs at the military high command.

He made it clear in one phase of his testimony that he deliberately ignored Pentagon planners in building up the Republic of Korea (ROK) Army to its present strength of 14 infantry divisions—with the training program now six times the size originally authorized.

Testifying before the Senate committee, Van Fleet made these salient points:

1. Even today there are "serious shortages" in some items of ammunition in Korea.

2. The U. S. 8th Army is only at 89 per cent of full battle strength, although the Pentagon promised that it would be built up to 15 per cent above full strength.

3. In some cases, the Army has only 30 per cent of the needed skills such as tank commanders.

Jet Fighters Strike Targets Near Siberia

SEOUL, March 5 (AP)—U. S. Air Force and Navy planes sowed flaming ruin in Northeast Korea Thursday climaxed by a record-breaking 1,000-mile Thunderjet raid only 50 miles from Siberia.

Three raids struck Northeast Korea in trip-hammer succession while other fighter-bombers in the Northwest pounded targets near the North Korean capital of Pyongyang, an area where a smoke haze still hung from a Superfort smash the night before.

At Wonsan, the "Mighty Mo" steamed boldly into harbor and churned the rubble of that eastern port for three hours with its 16-inch rifles. Not until the battleship Missouri began to move away did Red shore guns dare to fire back, and then they missed badly.

The blows by sea and air overshadowed small clashes along the 155-mile front, where there was a whiff of spring in the warming air after a night of light snow.

Industrial buildings, and power and mining installations went up in smoke and debris in the three raids in the Northeast.

Fifteen Thunderjets on their longest combat mission of the war flew 500 miles from base and smashed an industrial district near Chongjin, on the East Coast 50 miles south of the Siberian border.

Pilots reported they left the target area in smoking ruin with at least nine buildings smashed. The target is about 140 miles from the big Russian sea port and base of Vladivostok.

The Eighth Army reported a South Korean unit pushed a Red platoon off an outpost position on Sniper Ridge on the Central Front in a hand grenade fight that left an estimated 19 Chinese dead. A later counterattack by a Chinese squad was beaten off.

Another Allied force moving along the icy Nam River on the Eastern Front brushed twice with Red units and killed or wounded 11. Near Anchor Hill in the same sector, seven North Koreans died in a brief grenade battle.

Richardson, Leigh Win British Oscars

LONDON, March 5 — (INS) — The British film academy today awarded its "Oscar" for the best British acting performances of 1952 to Sir Ralph Richardson and Vivien Leigh.

American film star Marlon Brando won the academy's top honors as best foreign actor for his performance in "Viva Zapata."

Richardson was cited for his work in the movie "Breaking The Sound Barrier" and Miss Leigh won the best actress award for her performance in "A Streetcar Named Desire."

New Atomic Blasts Set For March 17

Set Up Primarily For Civil Defense

LAS VEGAS, Nev., March 5 (AP)—What could happen to your home in an atomic attack may be determined in the first of the spring series of tests starting March 17, the AEC said today.

The blast will come before dawn on the big proving ground 50 miles northwest of here, and will also find Army and Marine troops dug in for studies of its effect on p sonnel.

Questions Unanswered

A lot of questions were not answered by the Atomic Energy Commission's announcement — the exact hour of the blast, which may be televised nationally; the number of troops involved and how close they will be; and the nature of the explosion, whether a bomb dropped from a plane, fired from a tower, or sho' from a weapon.

The inaugural of the 1953 program, the third year that the AEC has used the Nevada desert for its continental testing and the second using U. S. troops, has been set up primarily for the federal Civil Defense Administration.

Other things to be observed—such as cars, clothing and animals—have not been specified, but the way in which a residence survives will form one of the most important features.

Civil defense has built two typical frame houses in co-operation with the American Institute of Architects. They will be located at different distances from ground zero—the point directly under the bomb's blast.

Smaller Bomb Used

One, about a half mile away, is expected to be blown apart, scattering heavy debris. The other, about a mile and a half from the center, may suffer some fire damage but should stand, the AEC indicated, although admitting that experts can't be sure precisely what will happen.

The nuclear device to be used will release energy equal to about 15,000 tons of TNT—a figure which the AEC said is "somewhat lower than the 20,000-ton release of a nominal bomb similar to those used at Hiroshima and Nagasaki."

Some of the atomic devices exploded at the Eniwetok Proving Grounds in the Pacific during the last two years have reportedly been vastly more powerful.

VOA Witness Kills Himself

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 5 (INS) — A Voice of America engineer, killed when he plunged under a moving truck, was ruled a suicide today and a top Congressional investigator said the death might be "an important development" in the Senate probe of the VOA.

The medical report on 42-year-old Raymond Kaplan came amid an FBI investigation and conflicting reports that Kaplan had been called as a witness at the Washington hearings of a Senate probe of the VOA, presided over by Sen. McCarthy (R) Wis.

Witnesses said Kaplan threw himself in the front of a truck driven by Henry Burke, 40, at Melrose outside the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where he had attended a faculty meeting last night.

In Washington, McCarthy described Kaplan as the liaison man between former Chief Voice Engineer John Herrick and MIT in the school's $600,000 contract to study proper locations for huge radio transmitters.

Tax Exemptions Bill Introduced

WASHINGTON, March 5 (AP) — Legislation to increase income tax exemptions was introduced today by Rep. Friedel (D-Md).

It calls for a $1,000 exemption for a single person, $2,500 for a married couple and an $800 allowance for each dependent. Under present law, $600 is allowed for each person.

Vishinsky To Leave

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., March 5 (AP)—Soviet Ambassador Georgi Zarubin said today Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky will fly to Moscow tomorrow.

Sonja Henie Seeks Bleacher Collapse Blame Be Shifted

BALTIMORE, March 5 (AP)—Ice Star Sonja Henie and the Sonja Henie Ice Review Inc. asked a court today to shift all damage claims from a grandstand collapse here a year ago to the grandstand contractor and his insurance concern.

Miss Henie and the ice show company are defendants in more than 350 suits filed after stands collapsed prior to the opening performance of her show here March 6, 1952.

A third-party complaint filed today asked that seating contractor Edwin P. Coronati and Coronati Amusements Inc. and the Hartford Accident and Indemnity Co. be held liable for "all sums that may be adjudicated against" Miss Henie and the ice show.

The complaint alleged that the Hartford company made inspections prior to the grandstand collapse and that it took supervision and control of the seating facilities and was negligent in its supervision.

Court officials here have estimated that about one-third of the claims have been settled out of court.

The damage suits were filed in three separate Baltimore city courts, but the three judges have ruled that the issue of liability must be decided in one consolidated hearing, with the matter of individual damages to be settled later at separate hearings.

One phase of the case—whether the insurance company shall be held liable beyond the face value of its policy—is up for consideration by the Maryland Court of Appeals, the state's highest court.

Last Stalin Picture

Polish Pilot Kidnaps MIG

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, March 5 (AP)—A Polish Air Force lieutenant, fed up with life in his Red homeland, zipped through the Iron Curtain and landed on a hazardously short Danish runway today in the first MIG15 jet fighter ever to fall undamaged into Western hands.

Within a few hours after the pilot screeched to halt on the Baltic island of Bornholm, Danish and British Air Force officers from Copenhagen were taking apart his Russian-built Polish Air Force plane to learn its jealously guarded secrets.

Meanwhile, Polish Minister Stanislaw Kelles-Krauz called at the Danish Foreign Office and demanded that the MIG be returned to Poland without delay.

Foreign Minister Ole Bjoern Kraft told the envoy the matter would be taken up by the Cabinet as soon as possible. Apart from that, Kraft said, he could make no promises.

MIG fighters are used by the Communists against United Nations forces in the Korean War. They are normally shy about combat close to the ground lines. A British Air Ministry spokesman said, however, MIG essentials "are pretty well known" from a damaged enemy plane salvaged by the British off the North Korean coast in 1951. But they could never get it to fly.

Denmark, a nation of 4½ million at the mouth of the Baltic, has no troops in Korea but is a member of the 14-nation North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Twice in recent months she has been the target of Russian propaganda attacks for her membership in NATO. The Russians charged that the Danes, in weighing plans to permit some Allied fighters to be based on Danish soil, were taking part in an anti-Russian war plot.

Powell Is Improved

SANTA MONICA, Calif., March 5 (AP) — Actor Dick Powell, recovering from two operations, is in good condition today, attendants at St. John's Hospital reported.

Powell underwent an emergency appendectomy last week then later surgery for an intestinal condition. Attendants said there is no indication how soon he will leave the hospital.

Juke Box Fee May Be Hiked To Ten Cents

BALTIMORE, March 5 (AP)—Ragtime for a dime? Or jive for five?

Baltimore juke box operators are faced with the question of whether to double their present charge of a nickel per record.

"We'd like to convert to a dime," one operator said, "but we don't know how soon we can do it. There is no definite plan as yet."

He pointed out that the price to the consumer has remained the same since the word "nickelodeon" came into the language, even though the price of records and equipment has risen many times.

But another distributor feared that conversion to a dime might discourage a lot of potential listeners. Music is a luxury, he said, and more than ordinarily subject to the law of diminishing returns.

Shrimp Boats Fined $1,720

CAMPECHE, Mexico, March 5 (AP) — Mexican authorities today recommended that 13 U. S. shrimp boats held here be ordered to pay fines of $1,720 each and that all their fishing tackle and cargoes be seized.

The shrimpers, captured and hauled into port by a Mexican gunboat, are accused of fishing in Mexican territorial waters. The Americans have denied the accusations in the boiling dispute. The U. S. recognizes a three mile limit while Mexico insists her control extends nine miles off shore.

Local authorities have passed on their recommendations on fines and seizure of gear and cargoes to the Navy Ministry, which will make the final decision.

Paul T. Culbertson, U. S. charge d'affaires, flew here yesterday to confer with the 50 officers and men of the captured vessels—all from Florida and Texas.

Proposed Delay For Maryland Tax Cut Gains Momentum In The Senate

ANNAPOLIS, March 5 (AP)—The Senate today voted for an automatic tax-cut plan but stalled over when to start it amid charges some Democrats were trying to help the Republican administration.

In the end a decision on whether to install a version of Virginia's reduction system next year or in 1955 was put off until tomorrow.

Even then the Senate must take another vote, and the House has yet to consider the proposal to use surplus revenues for tax relief instead of balancing budgets.

With unexpected serenity, the Senate endorsed its Finance Committee's support of the tax measure sponsored by 11 senators who tried without success to gain control when the session began. As written, it would grab any surplus next year to lower real estate and income taxes due in 1955.

Sen. Redden (D-Caroline), one of six who stood by President Della (D-Balto 6th) in the factional battle, offered an amendment to delay the effect another year.

"This is not a Republican amendment?" asked Sen. Preston (D-Balto 5th).

Redden said "No" as Della banged the gavel and called the query out of order.

The Carolina senator yesterday had said he was against the bill altogether. He explained today that

Ex-Congressman's Body Is Found

BALTIMORE, March 5 (AP) — A body identified as that of former Rep. Vincent Palmisano, who claimed to be the first Italian-born member of the U. S. Congress, was recovered today from the Baltimore harbor.

Friends, of the 70-year-old lawyer had expressed the belief that he committed suicide after he disappeared last Jan. 12. He had been in ill health for months and his gloves were found on a pier.

The body was identified by Mrs. Pauline Pizza, Palmisano's landlady, who said she recognized clothing and other personal effects. The former congressman had lived with Mrs. Pizza and her husband since the death of Mrs. Palmisano several years ago.

Ike Expresses Hope To Meet His Successor

White House Keeps Alert Watchfulness

WASHINGTON, March 5 (AP) — President Eisenhower took a position of alert watchfulness toward Russia today while expressing willingness to meet a successor to Joseph Stalin half way in the interests of world peace.

Regardless of personalities involved, the President told a news conference, the goal of peace must be pursued seriously.

Was his feeling one of "misgiving or optimism?" a reporter inquired.

Alert Watchfulness

Pausing in the middle of his answer and weighing his words, the Chief Executive said it is one of very definite watchfulness.

Did his remark of last week that he would go half way to Moscow to meet Stalin in the cause of peace hold good for a successor?

So far as he can tell at this moment, yes, the President replied. If there is any way to promote the cause of world peace, he said, he can think of no personal inconvenience or sacrifice he would not make.

It was Eisenhower's third news conference and it produced a third packed house. The President volunteered at the start some remarks on the Russian situation, government reorganization and price controls, but left most of the session to questions and answers. The result on a variety of subjects added up to this:

Doesn't Favor Extension

Van Fleet—No, the President does not favor extending the draft from 24 to 30 or 36 months as proposed to Congress yesterday by Gen. James Van Fleet.

Korea—There is nothing new Eisenhower can say on the Korean situation as a result of a White House visit from Van Fleet, retiring Eighth Army commander.

McCarthy—When the congressional investigations get into fields that seem to be misunderstoodor when dangers rise, he will show his convictions. But he hopes to avoid anything like that.

That was in answer to a question whether he thinks investigations by Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) and the Senate investigations subcommittee are furthering the hope of convincing the world that America is not materialistic and is trying to create a world in which

"Scientist X" Is Not Guilty

WASHINGTON, March 5 (AP)—Dr. Joseph W. Weinberg—the man called "Scientist X" during a congressional investigation of alleged atomic spying—was acquitted today of falsely swearing he had never been a member of the Communist party.

U. S. District Judge Alexander Holtzoff, who presided over the seven-day trial, said he didn't agree with the jury's verdict.

The judge told the jurors he had no doubt they approached the case conscientiously and said he respected their decision "even though the court does not approve of your verdict."

Weinberg, who is 36, slim and bespectacled, remarked to newsmen:

"I'm happy to prove my innocence but it wasn't a pleasant experience."

Judge Holtzoff said the testimony disclosed "an amazing and shocking situation existing in the crucial years of 1939, 1940 and 1941 on the campus of a great university in which a large and active Communist underground organization was in operation."

This was a reference to the University of California at Berkeley, where Weinberg worked in the radiation laboratory.

Treaty Approved

ROME, March 5 (AP)—Italian ratification of the European Defense Community Treaty passed its first hurdle today with approval by a special parliamentary commission. The treaty now will go to Parliament for action.

Eisenhower Sends Sympathy Message To Soviet Union

WASHINGTON, March 5 (AP) — President Eisenhower tonight instructed the secretary of state to transmit the "official condolences" of the United States government on the death of Premier Stalin of Russia.

The President directed Secretary Dulles to send this message to the American Embassy in Moscow for transmission to the government of the USSR:

"The government of the United States tenders its official condolences to the government of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics on the death of Generalissimo Joseph Stalin, Prime Minister of the Soviet Union."

Controls Lifted From Household, Auto Appliances

WASHINGTON, March 5 (AP) — Price controls were lifted from another big block of consumer goods today, leaving only about 3½ per cent of America's household budget under ceilings.

Price Chief Joseph H. Freehill said higher prices may result for bread, household appliances, laundry and dry cleaning, and automobile parts.

President Eisenhower told his news conference, however, that American business has shown admirable moderation in its price policies since the controls began vanishing.

Eisenhower said the absence of price gouging confirmed his belief that the American people were ready to be considerate and moderate. About the only major increase, he said, has been an expected rise of about six cents a pound in the price of copper.

Opposition to all price and wage controls, even in an all-out war, was voiced in Capitol Hill testimony by Charles R. Sligh Jr., president of the National Association of Manufacturers.

Sligh, a Grand Rapids, Mich., furniture manufacturer, appeared in opposition to bills that would set up standby controls or a 90-day freeze for use in event of a major emergency.

Major items decontrolled today were:

1. Bread and all other bakery products.

2. All major household appliances, including home refrigerators, dishwashers, ranges, clothes washers, driers and ironers, home and farm freezers.

3. All custom-molded and fabricated plastic products.

4. All new passenger automobiles and postwar used cars, parts and accessories, as well as all commercial vehicles, including trucks, buses, trailers and parts. This completed decontrol of the entire automotive industry, controls having been removed previously from pre-1946 used cars.

5. All laundry, dry cleaning, and linen and diaper supply services.

6. Glycerine, cocoa and cocoa products, copper chemicals and X-ray and electrical therapeutic apparatus.

Cough Troubles Premier Churchill

LONDON, March 5 (AP) — Prime Minister Churchill was troubled by a hacking cough while speaking in the House of Commons today.

A spokesman at No. 10 Downing Street—the Prime Minister's residence—said the 78-year-old Premier is "perfectly fit" and has no cold.

Russia Leader Was 73, Radio Reports Death

Prime Minister Fails At 1:50 PM Thursday

[By The Associated Press]

LONDON, Friday, March 6 (AP) — Joseph Stalin died last night behind the 12-foot-thick walls of Moscow's Kremlin. He dominated a third of the world's peoples as the most powerful dictator in history.

The Prime Minister of the Soviet Union and the supreme chief of the Communist party succumbed at 9:50 p.m. (1:50 p.m. EST), four days after suffering a brain hemorrhage (stroke).

Had Been In Coma

He had been in coma since he was stricken Sunday night, and his condition grew progressively worse. Yesterday his 10 physicians said his heart was faltering.

The announcement of his death was broadcast from Moscow at 4:07 a.m. Moscow time today—more than six hours after his doctors had given up their struggle.

The official announcement said:

"The heart of the comrade and inspired continuer of Lenin's will, the wise leader and teacher of the Communist party and the Soviet people — Joseph Vissarionovitch Stalin—has stopped beating."

There was no immediate indication from Moscow who was taking over control of the country, but the announcement was issued in the name of the Communist party's Central Committee, the Council of Ministers and the Presidium of the Supreme Council. All these are organs which Stalin dominated, and among those next to him in power have been Georgi Malenkov, L. P. Beria, V. M. Molotov and Nicholas Bulganin.

As if appealing for unity, the official statement said:

"In these sorrowful days all the peoples of our country are rallying even closer in a great fraternal family under the tested leadership of the Communist party created and reared by Lenin and Stalin."

The most prominent leader of the Communist party, next to Stalin, has been Malenkov. He keynoted the all-party congress last October, laying down the law to all segments of the party in matters of discipline.

Illness Known Wednesday

The Soviet regime holds sway across a sixth of the surface of the earth—from the Baltic Sea to Bering Strait.

Stalin's fatal illness became known on Wednesday, more than two days after he was stricken in his Kremlin apartment. An official announcement issued from the Ministry of Health and signed by the 10 physicians said Stalin "had a sudden hemorrhage of the brain" the night of March 1. This "affected vitally important parts of the brain" and paralyzed his right leg and the power to speak.

Two more bulletins were issued—early Thursday Moscow time, and again Thursday evening only an hour and a half before the announced death hour. The third bulletin told of Stalin's failing heart.

By a striking coincidence, Stalin's fatal illness came only two months after his regime had announced the uncovering of a plot by nine doctors. These doctors plotted to kill A. A. Zhdanov, once

Baltimore Housewife Named To Witness New Atom Blast

BALTIMORE, March 5 (AP) — A 51-year-old housewife and mother of three children has been chosen as the civil defense worker to represent the Baltimore area at atomic bomb tests in Las Vegas, Nev., March 17.

Shirley Ewing, state civil defense director, announced that Mrs. William F. Melville, had been chosen from more than 100 CD workers who volunteered for the assignment.

Mrs. Melville whose husband is a plumber, is supervisor of a shift at the Baltimore filter center. She is also chairman of the civil defense committee of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary and a member of the Minute Women o Maryland.

Ewing said he selected Mrs. Melville as typical of the thousands of volunteers working in civilian defense.

Of the more than 100 CD workers who telephoned CD headquarters volunteering for the assignment, eight were chosen and interviewed in person. Mrs. Melville was chosen from that group.

She will accompany Ewing and other state and city civil defense leaders to Las Vegas.

Polish Pilot Kidnaps MIG

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, March 5 (AP)—A Polish Air Force lieutenant, fed up with life in his Red homeland, zipped through the Iron Curtain and landed on a hazardously short Danish runway today in the first MIG15 jet fighter ever to fall undamaged into Western hands.

Within a few hours after the pilot screeched to halt on the Baltic island of Bornholm, Danish and British Air Force officers from Copenhagen were taking apart his Russian-built Polish Air Force plane to learn its jealously guarded secrets.

Meanwhile, Polish Minister Stanislaw Kelles-Krauz called at the Danish Foreign Office and demanded that the MIG be returned to Poland without delay.

Foreign Minister Ole Bjoern Kraft told the envoy the matter would be taken up by the Cabinet as soon as possible. Apart from that, Kraft said, he could make no promises.

MIG fighters are used by the Communists against United Nations forces in the Korean War. They are normally shy about combat close to the ground lines. A British Air Ministry spokesman said, however, MIG essentials "are pretty well known" from a damaged enemy plane salvaged by the British off the North Korean coast in 1951. But they could never get it to fly.

Denmark, a nation of 4½ million at the mouth of the Baltic, has no troops in Korea but is a member of the 14-nation North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Twice in recent months she has been the target of Russian propaganda attacks for her membership in NATO. The Russians charged that the Danes, in weighing plans to permit some Allied fighters to be based on Danish soil, were taking part in an anti-Russian war plot.

Powell Is Improved

SANTA MONICA, Calif., March 5 (AP) — Actor Dick Powell, recovering from two operations, is in good condition today, attendants at St. John's Hospital reported.

Powell underwent an emergency appendectomy last week then later surgery for an intestinal condition. Attendants said there is no indication how soon he will leave the hospital.

Juke Box Fee May Be Hiked To Ten Cents

BALTIMORE, March 5 (AP)—Ragtime for a dime? Or jive for five?

Baltimore juke box operators are faced with the question of whether to double their present charge of a nickel per record.

"We'd like to convert to a dime," one operator said, "but we don't know how soon we can do it. There is no definite plan as yet."

He pointed out that the price to the consumer has remained the same since the word "nickelodeon" came into the language, even though the price of records and equipment has risen many times.

But another distributor feared that conversion to a dime might discourage a lot of potential listeners. Music is a luxury, he said, and more than ordinarily subject to the law of diminishing returns.

Shrimp Boats Fined $1,720

CAMPECHE, Mexico, March 5 (AP) — Mexican authorities today recommended that 13 U. S. shrimp boats held here be ordered to pay fines of $1,720 each and that all their fishing tackle and cargoes be seized.

The shrimpers, captured and hauled into port by a Mexican gunboat, are accused of fishing in Mexican territorial waters. The Americans have denied the accusations in the boiling dispute. The U. S. recognizes a three mile limit while Mexico insists her control extends nine miles off shore.

Local authorities have passed on their recommendations on fines and seizure of gear and cargoes to the Navy Ministry, which will make the final decision.

Paul T. Culbertson, U. S. charge d'affaires, flew here yesterday to confer with the 50 officers and men of the captured vessels—all from Florida and Texas.

Proposed Delay For Maryland Tax Cut Gains Momentum In The Senate

ANNAPOLIS, March 5 (AP)—The Senate today voted for an automatic tax-cut plan but stalled over when to start it amid charges some Democrats were trying to help the Republican administration.

In the end a decision on whether to install a version of Virginia's reduction system next year or in 1955 was put off until tomorrow.

Even then the Senate must take another vote, and the House has yet to consider the proposal to use surplus revenues for tax relief instead of balancing budgets.

With unexpected serenity, the Senate endorsed its Finance Committee's support of the tax measure sponsored by 11 senators who tried without success to gain control when the session began. As written, it would grab any surplus next year to lower real estate and income taxes due in 1955.

Sen. Redden (D-Caroline), one of six who stood by President Della (D-Balto 6th) in the factional battle, offered an amendment to delay the effect another year.

"This is not a Republican amendment?" asked Sen. Preston (D-Balto 5th).

Redden said "No" as Della banged the gavel and called the query out of order.

The Carolina senator yesterday had said he was against the bill altogether. He explained today that

White House Keeps Alert Watchfulness

WASHINGTON, March 5 (AP) — President Eisenhower took a position of alert watchfulness toward Russia today while expressing willingness to meet a successor to Joseph Stalin half way in the interests of world peace.

Regardless of personalities involved, the President told a news conference, the goal of peace must be pursued seriously.

Was his feeling one of "misgiving or optimism?" a reporter inquired.

Alert Watchfulness

Pausing in the middle of his answer and weighing his words, the Chief Executive said it is one of very definite watchfulness.

Did his remark of last week that he would go half way to Moscow to meet Stalin in the cause of peace hold good for a successor?

So far as he can tell at this moment, yes, the President replied. If there is any way to promote the cause of world peace, he said, he can think of no personal inconvenience or sacrifice he would not make.

It was Eisenhower's third news conference and it produced a third packed house. The President volunteered at the start some remarks on the Russian situation, government reorganization and price controls, but left most of the session to questions and answers. The result on a variety of subjects added up to this:

Doesn't Favor Extension

Van Fleet—No, the President does not favor extending the draft from 24 to 30 or 36 months as proposed to Congress yesterday by Gen. James Van Fleet.

Korea—There is nothing new Eisenhower can say on the Korean situation as a result of a White House visit from Van Fleet, retiring Eighth Army commander.

McCarthy—When the congressional investigations get into fields that seem to be misunderstoodor when dangers rise, he will show his convictions. But he hopes to avoid anything like that.

That was in answer to a question whether he thinks investigations by Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) and the Senate investigations subcommittee are furthering the hope of convincing the world that America is not materialistic and is trying to create a world in which

WASHINGTON, March 5 (AP)—Dr. Joseph W. Weinberg—the man called "Scientist X" during a congressional investigation of alleged atomic spying—was acquitted today of falsely swearing he had never been a member of the Communist party.

U. S. District Judge Alexander Holtzoff, who presided over the seven-day trial, said he didn't agree with the jury's verdict.

The judge told the jurors he had no doubt they approached the case conscientiously and said he respected their decision "even though the court does not approve of your verdict."

Weinberg, who is 36, slim and bespectacled, remarked to newsmen:

"I'm happy to prove my innocence but it wasn't a pleasant experience."

Judge Holtzoff said the testimony disclosed "an amazing and shocking situation existing in the crucial years of 1939, 1940 and 1941 on the campus of a great university in which a large and active Communist underground organization was in operation."

This was a reference to the University of California at Berkeley, where Weinberg worked in the radiation laboratory.

Treaty Approved

ROME, March 5 (AP)—Italian ratification of the European Defense Community Treaty passed its first hurdle today with approval by a special parliamentary commission. The treaty now will go to Parliament for action.

Eisenhower Sends Sympathy Message To Soviet Union

WASHINGTON, March 5 (AP) — President Eisenhower tonight instructed the secretary of state to transmit the "official condolences" of the United States government on the death of Premier Stalin of Russia.

The President directed Secretary Dulles to send this message to the American Embassy in Moscow for transmission to the government of the USSR:

"The government of the United States tenders its official condolences to the government of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics on the death of Generalissimo Joseph Stalin, Prime Minister of the Soviet Union."

Controls Lifted From Household, Auto Appliances

WASHINGTON, March 5 (AP) — Price controls were lifted from another big block of consumer goods today, leaving only about 3½ per cent of America's household budget under ceilings.

Price Chief Joseph H. Freehill said higher prices may result for bread, household appliances, laundry and dry cleaning, and automobile parts.

President Eisenhower told his news conference, however, that American business has shown admirable moderation in its price policies since the controls began vanishing.

Eisenhower said the absence of price gouging confirmed his belief that the American people were ready to be considerate and moderate. About the only major increase, he said, has been an expected rise of about six cents a pound in the price of copper.

Opposition to all price and wage controls, even in an all-out war, was voiced in Capitol Hill testimony by Charles R. Sligh Jr., president of the National Association of Manufacturers.

Sligh, a Grand Rapids, Mich., furniture manufacturer, appeared in opposition to bills that would set up standby controls or a 90-day freeze for use in event of a major emergency.

Major items decontrolled today were:

1. Bread and all other bakery products.

2. All major household appliances, including home refrigerators, dishwashers, ranges, clothes washers, driers and ironers, home and farm freezers.

3. All custom-molded and fabricated plastic products.

4. All new passenger automobiles and postwar used cars, parts and accessories, as well as all commercial vehicles, including trucks, buses, trailers and parts. This completed decontrol of the entire automotive industry, controls having been removed previously from pre-1946 used cars.

5. All laundry, dry cleaning, and linen and diaper supply services.

6. Glycerine, cocoa and cocoa products, copper chemicals and X-ray and electrical therapeutic apparatus.

Cough Troubles Premier Churchill

LONDON, March 5 (AP) — Prime Minister Churchill was troubled by a hacking cough while speaking in the House of Commons today.

[By The Associated Press]

LONDON, Friday, March 6 (AP) — Joseph Stalin died last night behind the 12-foot-thick walls of Moscow's Kremlin. He dominated a third of the world's peoples as the most powerful dictator in history.

The Prime Minister of the Soviet Union and the supreme chief of the Communist party succumbed at 9:50 p.m. (1:50 p.m. EST), four days after suffering a brain hemorrhage (stroke).

Had Been In Coma

He had been in coma since he was stricken Sunday night, and his condition grew progressively worse. Yesterday his 10 physicians said his heart was faltering.

The announcement of his death was broadcast from Moscow at 4:07 a.m. Moscow time today—more than six hours after his doctors had given up their struggle.

The official announcement said:

"The heart of the comrade and inspired continuer of Lenin's will, the wise leader and teacher of the Communist party and the Soviet people — Joseph Vissarionovitch Stalin—has stopped beating."

There was no immediate indication from Moscow who was taking over control of the country, but the announcement was issued in the name of the Communist party's Central Committee, the Council of Ministers and the Presidium of the Supreme Council. All these are organs which Stalin dominated, and among those next to him in power have been Georgi Malenkov, L. P. Beria, V. M. Molotov and Nicholas Bulganin.

As if appealing for unity, the official statement said:

"In these sorrowful days all the peoples of our country are rallying even closer in a great fraternal family under the tested leadership of the Communist party created and reared by Lenin and Stalin."

The most prominent leader of the Communist party, next to Stalin, has been Malenkov. He keynoted the all-party congress last October, laying down the law to all segments of the party in matters of discipline.

Illness Known Wednesday

The Soviet regime holds sway across a sixth of the surface of the earth—from the Baltic Sea to Bering Strait.

Stalin's fatal illness became known on Wednesday, more than two days after he was stricken in his Kremlin apartment. An official announcement issued from the Ministry of Health and signed by the 10 physicians said Stalin "had a sudden hemorrhage of the brain" the night of March 1. This "affected vitally important parts of the brain" and paralyzed his right leg and the power to speak.

Two more bulletins were issued—early Thursday Moscow time, and again Thursday evening only an hour and a half before the announced death hour. The third bulletin told of Stalin's failing heart.

By a striking coincidence, Stalin's fatal illness came only two months after his regime had announced the uncovering of a plot by nine doctors. These doctors plotted to kill A. A. Zhdanov, once

Sonja Henie Seeks Bleacher Collapse Blame Be Shifted

BALTIMORE, March 5 (AP)—Ice Star Sonja Henie and the Sonja Henie Ice Review Inc. asked a court today to shift all damage claims from a grandstand collapse here a year ago to the grandstand contractor and his insurance concern.

Miss Henie and the ice show company are defendants in more than 350 suits filed after stands collapsed prior to the opening performance of her show here March 6, 1952.

A third-party complaint filed today asked that seating contractor Edwin P. Coronati and Coronati Amusements Inc. and the Hartford Accident and Indemnity Co. be held liable for "all sums that may be adjudicated against" Miss Henie and the ice show.

The complaint alleged that the Hartford company made inspections prior to the grandstand collapse and that it took supervision and control of the seating facilities and was negligent in its supervision.

Court officials here have estimated that about one-third of the claims have been settled out of court.

The damage suits were filed in three separate Baltimore city courts, but the three judges have ruled that the issue of liability must be decided in one consolidated hearing, with the matter of individual damages to be settled later at separate hearings.

One phase of the case—whether the insurance company shall be held liable beyond the face value of its policy—is up for consideration by the Maryland Court of Appeals, the state's highest court.

Baltimore Housewife Named To Witness New Atom Blast

BALTIMORE, March 5 (AP) — A 51-year-old housewife and mother of three children has been chosen as the civil defense worker to represent the Baltimore area at atomic bomb tests in Las Vegas, Nev., March 17.

Shirley Ewing, state civil defense director, announced that Mrs. William F. Melville, had been chosen from more than 100 CD workers who volunteered for the assignment.

Mrs. Melville whose husband is a plumber, is supervisor of a shift at the Baltimore filter center. She is also chairman of the civil defense committee of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary and a member of the Minute Women o Maryland.

Ewing said he selected Mrs. Melville as typical of the thousands of volunteers working in civilian defense.

Of the more than 100 CD workers who telephoned CD headquarters volunteering for the assignment, eight were chosen and interviewed in person. Mrs. Melville was chosen from that group.

She will accompany Ewing and other state and city civil defense leaders to Las Vegas.

Along The Potomac

by Rep. DeWitt S. Hyde

It was my privilege last week to act as judge in the oratorical contest sponsored by the American Legion at Leland Junior High School in Montgomery County.

Though many people seem to see fit to criticize the teachings in our schools, it was obvious from the speeches that the young people gave that they are getting a much better grasp of the real meaning of American freedom than many of the critics are willing to acknowledge.

Three items of legislation were passed in the House of Representatives last week. I voted with the majority on all three—to provide $300,000 for the investigating expenses of the Committee on Un-American Activities, to require an annual review of personnel requirements in the military departments, and to increase by $500,000 the amount the Federal Housing Agency is authorized to insure.

Much of our work, now, is in our various committees, where all proposed legislation is studied before it comes to the attention of the whole House. Last week I accompanied other members of our District subcommittee on health and education on a tour of the National Training School for Girls and the School for Dependent Children, in order that we might see first-hand what is needed to improve these institutions.

Residents of the Cumberland area have complained that their television reception has been very poor. I took this up with the Federal Communications Commission, and a representative was sent to look into the matter . . . I was authorized to name one young man as third alternate candidate for appointment to the Naval Academy, and after considerable study James William Rowley of Cumberland has been selected . . . This Saturday I will again be in my Cumberland office all day. Persons who wish to drop in for a visit should phone Mrs. Shaffer in the office at Cumberland 1887 to set the time.

Miss Irene Middlekauff of Hagerstown writes to point out that existing federal rent controls have encouraged development of many small apartments where children generally are not permitted; rather than large homes where families can settle permanently. This is a good point. A decision on rent controls will be one of the major jobs of this Congress, and perhaps trends such as Miss Middlekauff pointed out can be stopped.

I may draft a bill making federal provisions for compensation to disabled railroad employes, regardless of whether the injury was the fault of the employer. This would be similar to our Maryland state law . . . 35 pupils from Westbrook Elementary School visited Congress last week with their teacher, Mrs. Anita Bnenett . . . I enjoyed very much the visit to the Montgomery County Federation of Women last Tuesday.

Engineers Will Meet

Local 37-B, Operating Engineers (AFL), will meet Saturday night at the Dairy Workers Hall, corner of Centre and Valley Streets, Harry L. Hickle, business agent, reported yesterday.

Benson's Buying Butter

The decision of Secretary of Agriculture Benson on butter is spotlighting the plight of the nation's dairy farmers. Benson on February 27 announced that the government would continue to buy butter for another 12 months beginning April 1 — supporting dairy products at 90 per cent of parity.

The government has been buying butter since November 30 last—at the rate of one million pounds a day. Recently that rate has been doubled. And the peak seasonal production of butter is still several months away.

The government now holds about 91 million pounds of butter. Butter is perishable; much of this stock threatens to be a total loss to the government. About 20 million pounds have been diverted to the Federal School Lunch Program. Some may be turned over to other relief programs and to CARE. A New York butter dealer urged on March 1 that the government institute "butter bargain days," giving away a pound of surplus butter with every pound bought at retail.

"The trend of butter consumption, of course, has declined for many years and margarine use has gone up", Secretary Benson said in an interview made public this week. "Vegetable fats are now being used in ice cream and other products which once used butter almost exclusively. On the other hand, we've had an increase in population. The consumpton of fluid milk has increased, and the consumption of powdered milk has increased."

Benson spoke of a need to "get the great distribution agencies (he cited the National Association of Grocers and the National Association of Food Chains) to co-operate in selling a surplus of any particular item." Senator Aiken (R., Vt.), chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, has declared that farmers should produce a low-fat-content butter to compete with oleo in price.

The sale of colored margarine in direct competition with butter is still prohibited in some states, but some of these laws may be repealed by state legislatures meeting this year. Margarine generally sells at less than half the price of butter.

According to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, consumption of butter this year probably will decline to a new record low of just above eight pounds per person. In the years from 1935 to 1939 Americans were eating 16.7 pounds of butter a year each.

But in 1952 the per capita consumption of margarine was 7.7 pounds, and Americans are expected to eat at least that much of it this year. In the years from 1935 to 1939, Americans ate only 2.9 pounds of margarine a year each.

The government was in the butter market in a big way back in October 1950. Then, with Grade-A butter selling at about 64½ cents a pound, the Commodity Credit Corporation offered 125 million pounds at prices slightly below the market in all states except California, Washington, and Oregon. In addition, 61 million pounds of Grade-B butter were put on sale. Sale of government butter then was viewed as a price control weapon against inflation.

Spaceman's Luck

Nowhere is the spirit of "unification" among the armed forces placed under greater strain than in a cavernous office near the mail entrance to the Pentagon. Here are based the propaganda fountains of the three services. The Army "information desk" mercifully separates the Navy and the Air Force.

Here is to be found real trench warfare, with sapping, mining, attack and counter-attack, psychological warfare—the works. Take the case of the Navy's "space suit."

With no little pride the blue water service announced the other day development of the "first full pressure flying suit." This means, the Navy said, that it will be possible for men to fly safely in outer space. By no coincidence at all the Air Force had a rebuttal ready. Heck, sniffed the Air Force, we had a suit like that in the works, but we abandoned it way back in 1944 for a better model.

Lobbing over a grenade they had apparently been saving for a long, long time, Air Force publicists pointed out archly that the pilot of the Navy Skyrocket wore an Air Force pressure suit in a historic flight in the summer of 1951 which broke all speed and altitude marks. The Navy sniffed that the Air Force suit was the best available then, but it isn't any more.

Having happily ambushed this Navy patrol the Air Force went back to figuring new reasons why the long range bomber concept is better than carrier based aircraft and whistling a tune called "Spaceman's Luck." The Navy was left with what it could salvage.

The populace may be bewildered, but it should be heartened by evidence that both services are working on the sartorially correct thing to wear in outer space. But would it be too much to ask why both arms aren't working in conjunction?

Senatorial Elections

Other things being equal, the Republicans would expect to lose some Senate seats, and hence their present Senate majority of one, in the elections for Congress next year. The party in power almosts always (1934 was one of the rare exceptions) loses seats in both the Senate and the House in the midterm elections.

But things aren't equal in the 1954 senatorial elections. The breaks are in favor of the GOP in the 32 Senate seats now down to be contested. For one thing, Republicans hold only 11 of those 32 seats, whereas 21 of them are occupied by Democrats.

Foranother thing, the Republicans can safely count on retaining seven of their 11 seats to be contested, facing real fights in only four (Idaho, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Michigan). The Democrats, on the other hand, face real fights, at least from the present look of things, to retain their present seats from 10 states—Colorado, Delaware, Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, Montana, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, Wyoming.

In 1952 the breaks favored the Democrats in the senatorial elections. They held less than one-half of the seats at stake, and few in states that looked doubtful, whereas the Republicans seemed to face real fights to retain most of their Senate seats. Yet the GOP took three seats, net, from the Democrats—Eisenhower, running ahead of the Republican ticket in most states, carried in certain GOP senatorial candidates on his coattails.

Scalp Ringworm In Children

Ringworm is a common disorder of the scalp in school children. After the infection becomes well established in the schoolroom, it is difficult to control. This is the reason why prevention is stressed and, along this line, many schools insist upon periodic checkups with the filtered ultraviolet light, called the Wood's glass.

Children pass around their germs in wholesale fashion. In an auditorium, they squirm constantly rubbing their heads against the back of the seat. If ringworm of the scalp is present, the next child who occupies the seat is likely to pick up the infection. Youngsters try on one another's caps and hats and a towel is something with which to dry the hands and face without any regard to who used it before. The same can be said of the comb and brush. At any rate, when a highly contagious organism is placed in this environment, it spreads like a prairie fire.

Ringworm is a misnomer, as the causative agent is not a worm but a fungus and the lesions are seldom ringshaped. They usually begin as small coin sized or irregular patches upon the scalp. The hairs in this area are lack-luster and are broken off close to the scalp. They have the appearance of having been nibbled off to produce the effect of partial baldness. The patches are covered with minute, whitish, or slate colored scales. Various degrees of inflammation are present and occasionally the bald spots itch, especially when the scalp is dry.

When the lights are turned out and the rays of a special ultraviolet light are directed to the scalp, the infected hairs and scales become fluorescent and glow in the dark. Because the normal scalp does not fluoresce, this light has become one of the best ways of detecting scalp ringworm. It will locate spots no bigger than a pinpoint. Furthermore, the light serves in treatment as a guide to denote progress.

There are hundreds of different forms of fungi, several of which attack the scalp. Some are more amenable than others to treatment and it is important in each case to identify the species. This is done by removing an infected hair and sending it to the laboratory for study. A recent report from Arizona, for example, states that Microsporum lanosum is the most frequent form of ringworm in that locality. This organism prefers dogs or cats and responds readily in humans to removal of the hairs by hand plus the application of an ointment containing salicylic acid and ammoniated mercury. Elsewhere in the country M. audouini is more prevalent. This is one of the more stubborn fungi and in the majority of cases, X-ray is necessary. It is valuable, but many parents are concerned about this agent. The amount of X-ray used to kill the fungus, however, is so small it affects only the surface. It causes the hair to fall out temporarily and in so doing eliminates the habitat of the organisms.

One attack of ringworm of the scalp does not confer immunity, which explains why a single case is the signal for the entire community to be on guard. One untreated child may reinfect the others and undo all the labor of parents, teachers, nurses, and physicians.

PROLONGED ULCER

D.S.P. writes: Is it possible for a duodenal ulcer to continue for 15 years or more?

Yes, but when the lesion persists over this length of time some thought should be given to surgery. After all, we live only once, and why should we spend the best years of our life in distress?

12-YEAR-OLD SMOKER

D. S. writes: I'm 12 years old and my parents say smoking will stunt my growth. Is this true?

REPLY

Why not believe your parents when they say smoking will stunt your growth? This is part of the reasoning behind the advice to teen-agers not to smoke until they have attained full growth.

GALL BLADDER DIET

H. R. writes: Is the gallstone diet the same as the diet for an inflamed gall bladder?

REPLY

Yes, because in both instances the purpose of the diet is to minimize the work of the gall bladder. Furthermore, whenever stones are present, infection is likely to exist.

CANCER "CURE"

Mrs. T. writes: I have heard of a doctor who claims he can detect cancer by putting a few drops of the patient's blood on a tissue and if cancer is present he can cure it with vitamins and fruit juices. Have you heard of this method?

REPLY

To my knowledge there are no reliable blood tests for cancer, nor is the disease cured with vitamins or fruit juices. This hoax should be brought to the attention of your local health authorities.

Secret Yalta Notes Will Be Pigeonholed; Senators Consider Disciplining AFL Editor; Senator Daniel Who Received Oil Support Leads Attack

WASHINGTON — Secretary John Foster Dulles, meeting with top officers of the State Department, turned to Chip Bohlen, new envoy to Russia and chief interpreter for FDR at Yalta.

"What's this I hear about some running accounts of Yalta being on file here?" he asked. "I told the senators that there are no such notes, and thought there were not. Now I hear there are."

"We got them back from the White House," replied Bohlen. "They carry little of importance, mostly rather bum jokes by the President and Mr. Churchill. The senators have all the agreement material. The stenographic notes are not essential. Some of the jokes might unintentionally hurt the feelings of one or another of our current allies."

"If I'm queried by the senators I'll stick to my old answer," countered Dulles. "I don't know of any stenographic notes in the files."

"I suppose that's all you can do," observed Bohlen.

Penalty For An Editor

The Senate Interior Committee called a special secret session early this week to consider the question of disciplining or even recording the indictment of Bernard Tassler, managing editor of the American Federation of Labor magazine, "The American Federationist" for his criticism of tidelands oil senators.

This unusual procedure was hushed up behind closed doors, but senators were told to be present at 9:30 a. m., 30 minutes before the public session opened. A special request was made to have a quorum present in order to take important action.

Simultaneously, Editor Tassler was called by Stewart French, clerk of the Interior Committee, and asked to be present. Tassler replied that he would be glad to appear before a public session, but said he would not participate in any star-chamber proceedings.

What caused all the Senate indignation was an editorial in the Washington News captioned :

"The 300-Billion Dollar Offshore Oil Giveaway."

It was signed by the "Citizens Committee Against the Offshore Oil Grab," of which Tassler is a leader.

Price Daniel Fumes

The man who got literally purple of face over this ad and wanted to discipline Tassler was freshman Senator Price Daniel of Texas, who received heavy campaign contributions from Texas oilmen and who made tidelands oil one of the chief issues of his campaign. The paid ad raised the question as to why a small group of senators were in such a rush to pass the tidelands oil bill. "Is it," the ad asked, "a pay-off for lavish campaign contributions last fall?"

When the secret meeting convened, however, Senator Daniel, a freshman Republicrat, kept silent. He let older GOP Senator Guy Cordon of Oregon cary the ball.

"The American people want to know," Cordon read the ad, his face flushing, "why Congress is in such an unseemly rush to give away $300,000,000. What's the explanation? Is it true that the plan is to rob the American people for the benefit of a few, greedy, powerful interests?

"Let there be a searching, open, honest bipartisan investigation to find out whether it is true that some high administration leaders and some members of Congress now sweating to rush through the offshore giveaway . . . had their election campaigns of last fall lavishly financed by the oil industry . . .

"The American people are highly suspicious, because they know that it just doesn't make sense for senators and congressmen from the 45 states which would lose heavily by the proposed giveaway, to be working for the giveaway legislation . . .

"This is the reason for the widespread charge that the giveaway deal is just a pay-off to those who contributed lavishly to campaign funds last fall. Is this really true? Or is the charge untrue? . . ."

Oil Money Flowed

Senator Cordon looked around the room indignantly as he finished reading, then handed the ad to Senator Molly Malone of Nevada. By that time only seven senators had arrived, not enough for a quorum, and a quorum is necessary to take such important action as the disciplining of a newsman.

So the committee went into a public session, and the question of proceeding against Tassler was left in mid-air. Wiser senators are hoping Cordon and Daniel will cool off.

NOTE—Illustrating the oil contributions outside Texas, here is a partial listing of the $53,000 given away by Texas oilman H. R. Cullen during the recent campaign: Eisenhower, $5,000; McCarthy in Wisconsin, $5,000; Jenner in Indiana, $3,500, Cain in Washington, $1,000; Brewster in Maine $1,000; Watkins in Utah, $1,000; Pat Hurley in New Mexico, $1,000; Malone in Nevada, $1,000; Ecton in Montana, $1,000; Kem in Missouri, $1,000. Price Daniel of Texas also got $5,000. All of the above have favored tidelands oil except Malone, Ecton and Watkins, and it now appears that Watkins has changed his views and is for the oil interests.

A Southerner's Tribute

One of the most shocked over the late Senator Bob La Follette's suicide was the old political warhorse, Senator Walter George of Georgia, who fought many legislative battles against La Follette.

It was George who delivered probably the most glowing tribute to La Follette's memory on the Senate floor. Afterward Senator Paul Douglas of Illinois, who has locked horns with George on occasion congratulated the veteran Southerner.

There was an intense look on George's face as he replied very simply:

"I loved that boy."

On The Line

By BOB CONSIDINE

WASHINGTON (INS) — The most attention the constitution of the United States had had in a long time, except that directed at the document by the Supreme Court, came recently when it was moved into its new and permanent home in the archives building.

Troops stood guard with tommy guns at ready, and the priceless parchment was carried into place encased in a special frame containing helium and other preservatives.

Chances are that none of the troops on hand, none of the document bearers and precious few of the official party on hand to watch the historic event could answer many questions about the codes under which we set up this government and which we have prospered.

Well, if a couple of Los Angeles teachers, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Findlay, have anything to say about it, we'll all soon understand what we tried (and generally failed) to understand when we memorized the preamble in the third grade and blacked out on the meat of the Constitution.

The Findlays have written, and Stanford University press has published, "Your Rugged Constitution."

For $1.15, Stanford will send you a copy (.75 if you order 10,000 or more) and you'll never regret it. Or, better, you'll never forget it. For the couple has rephrased the great law of the land into simple 20th century language. They have taken the Constitution, clause by clause, article by article, printed the original text of each section and then, on a facing page, the simplified version of those words. On top of that there are short explanatory boxes at the bottom of the page, explaining what you yield, or deny, in that particular passage, and what you get.

For example, Article One, Section 10, Clause One of the founding fathers reads:

"No state shall enter into any treaty, alliance, or confederation; grant letters of marque and reprisal; coin money; emit bills of credit; make anything but gold and silver coin tender in payment of debts; pass any bill or attainder, ex post facto law, or law impairing the obligation of contracts, or grant any title of nobility."

The Findlays reduce this to a cartoon of Uncle Sam telling an assortment of personified states, "You states must all keep an eye on this clause! It forbids you to do certain things which the people don't intend having anybody do!"

"You deny: To the states the rights (A) to make treaties, coin money, or use other powers which the Constitution gives to the federal government; or (B) to do certain other things, including the punishment of a person without a trial in court.

"You get: Assurances (A) that no state will take over certain duties assigned to the federal government; (B) that no state will take certain powers which you do not intend to give to anyone."

To clarify the article dealing with legislative powers, the Findlays visualize the people as a powerhouse, with the people transmitting power to the Senate and the House of Representatives.

This remarkable pamphlet could re-educate the people of the country. It was made possible by a grant to the Stanford school of education by two brothers, Gordon and Allan Crary. Herbert Hoover was one of the first to hail it. Its first big customer was 84-year-old William Robertson Coe, retired industrialist, who ordered 100,000 for distribution to employes of companies of which he was a director.

So much was said about the sacred Constitution, during the last political campaign, that there must be more confusion than ever about this most loved and least read bit of American literature. "Your Rugged Constitution," not only makes fascinating reading but will enable countless thousands of visitors to the archives building to stare at the precious parchment for the first time with a light of true understanding in their eyes.

The Invisible Tax Man

We said the French have solved the problem of hidden taxes by hiding their money first.

We took a special excursion to Washington to find an expert on hidden taxes. He was hiding himself.

You cannot locate these mysterious excises by looking under bicycle seats.

The citizen knows the loot is all stacked up on the wrong side of the chicken wire. He pushes the plunder through the window marked "elimination." And gets a stock of receipts for chips.

An economic lecturer told me there were 237 ambushed taxes on a platter of French pastry. He explained it includes the waiter's imported racing car.

Maybe the way to balance the budget is to hide more stuff. In case the tax squad finds your private cookie jar—don't quote me.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — The policy of the United States Government as a consequence of the ending of the dictatorship of Joseph Stalin will of necessity be based on one assumption. This is that any change in personalities at the helm in Moscow does not mean peace or an easing of world tension until there is concrete evidence to the contrary.

Hence, the build-up of armament in America and overseas will continue as per program. If and when the armies of the Soviet Union are demobilized and there is a withdrawal of aid to the Chinese Communist military forces in Korea, there can safely be a change in policy here.

Despite all the speculation as to what the absence of Stalin from the topmost position in the Russian regime means or may mean, the American government, which bears the major responsibility for protecting the free world against further attack by the Communist regime, cannot make its plans on the basis of wishful thinking or guessing.

Scraps of Paper

From the standpoint of the Moscow Communist leaders, there isn't any good reason to alter their policies either. They have not intended to begin a large-scale war for the simple reason that infiltration and local wars have scared the Allies and bluffed them into limiting their reprisals. The United Nations, moreover, has demonstrated that its resolutions are mere scraps of paper and that the Soviet Union can actually supply arms to an aggressor without undergoing any ostracism in that international body. From the Kremlin viewpoint, things really look good.

So, why should the Kremlin leaders change their policies if they are apparently winning success without committing a single regiment of their own to the "cold war"? There are rumors, of course, that reckless members of the Politburo might try to start a march across Europe, which would mean the beginning of large-scale war on an atomic level. But since Stalin has proved to his colleagues how superfluous such a step is toward winning a victory over the West, it seems illogical to believe that any such chances would be taken to arouse the Russian populace. The Soviet people are as pacifist-minded today as are the people of most of the Western countries. There is in the Soviet population no will to fight unnecessary wars, especially when there has been no attack requiring a defense of the homeland. Memories of 5,000,000 dead and many more wounded are still vivid in the Soviet Union.

The Western Allies will, of course, do their utmost to capitalize on the apparent end to the unity of the Stalin dictatorship. Efforts will be made by propaganda and governmental policies to drive a wedge between the Soviet people and the Moscow government. Now is the time to hammer home to the Russian people facts about the menace to peace which has been developed by Kremlin policy.

President Eisenhower must have had something like this in mind as he issued his message of sympathy for the Russian people—a masterful expression—in which he said:

"Regardless of the identity of government personalities, the prayer of us Americans continues to be that the Almighty will watch over the people of that vast country and bring them, in His wisdom, opportunity to live their lives in a world where all men and women and children can dwell in peace and comradeship."

Chance For Spiritual Side

Beamed no doubt by radio to the Soviet Union and doubtless published in the Russian press, this message presented an opportunity to reflect American purpose accurately in contradiction of the diatribes about the "warmongers" of the United States which have been appearing so often in Soviet newspapers.

The word from the Vatican, too, where the Pope prayed for the conversion of Stalin to repentance for his evil deeds and for "a better future for the oppressed Russian people," is of profound importance. Events in Moscow will furnish an opportunity, especially in the solemn mood in which the Soviet people will be living in the next few days, for the spokesmen of free institutions to re-emphasize the spiritual side. It is significant that the Moscow censors permitted news dispatches to tell of the prayers in the churches of Jews and Russian orthodox Catholics in the Soviet Union beseeching God to restore Stalin to health.

The sudden change in the Soviet Union's top command will not bring an immediate crisis. Most of the stir for the time being will be on this side of the iron curtain, where the tendency will be to exaggerate the significance of the occurrence and to assume that the removal of one evil man suddenly makes the other 12 in the Kremlin virtuous. It will take a little while for the disillusionment to come—but it will come.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Running Interference

The new agency of the Ford Foundation, "Fund for the Republic," of which Paul Hoffman is the head, is undertaking an enterprise which requires scrutiny because it is the first time that an eleemosynary institution has entered upon a political activity. While the "Fund for the Republic" claims that it is opposed to communism, it obviously intends to run an inquiry that will parallel the investigations of congressional committees.

There can be no objection to private citizens organizing for the purpose of making an objective study of any function of government. However, such a private body, to be respected, needs to publish not only the distinguished names who act as a front, but also the paid employes who do the actual work. It has been found in the past that men and women of dubious reputations find employment behind such fronts and pursue courses which tragically end in refuge behind the Fifth Amendment.

The names of the paid employes, the staff of Paul Hoffman's new committee, have not been made public and therefore there is no possibility of scrutiny for the purpose of appraising the objectivity of its work. However, one hears that among them are some who say that while they themselves are opposed to communism, they are equally opposed to the methods used by congressional committees and anti-Communist groups to ferret out traitors, spies and agents of the Stalinist conspiracy.

If this is correct, it will be interesting to see what methods they criticize and what other methods might be used for these purposes. It will also be interesting to see how they spend $15,000,000 for this purpose and who gets the money.

To contrast the use of economic power by a private foundation, it is important to note that while the Ford Foundation spends $15,000,000 for this purpose, the House Committee on Un-American Activities has an appropriation of $300,000; the McCarthy Committee, $200,000; the Jenner Committee, $200,000. Senator McCarran, with a smaller appropriation, ably uncovered a vile ring of spies and Communists in the United Nations.

While inquiry of every nature is to be welcomed, it is startling that this particular type requires the huge sum of $15,000,000. The amount seems to be too large for the target sought. For instance, research workers can study effectively the methods employed by congressional committees by analyzing the testimony taken before such committees, all of which is printed and available and costs no money if read in the public libraries or if obtained from the committees. Perhaps the Ford Foundation will re-investigate these cases or hold private hearings of its own. Perhaps it will retry the Alger Hiss case or send a copy of the Earl of Jowitt's forthcoming book on Hiss to every library in the country. That would cost a good deal of money, although hardly $15,000,000.

Maybe $15,000,000 seems a huge sum to me, I being just a laborer who toils in the fields, whereas Paul Hoffman has distributed billions of American dollars to all the nations of the world and is therefore accustomed to larger figures. Admittedly, there is a difference in point of view. Nevertheless, it seems to be a lot of money to spend on analyzing Senator Joe McCarthy's methods or to produce the startling evidence that because of a resolution publicly passed at an American Legion convention, some citizens will not attend a motion picture in which a Communist is employed, or that a technique has been devised to make it easier for persons cited as Communists or fellow-travelers to clear themselves by their own means.

All the information on this subject is available and can be read in "The American Legion Magazine," and other publications, including this column. If Mr. Hoffman wants further data on the Hollywood situation, I shall be glad to provide it to him for nothing and he can then give the $15,000,000 for cancer research or some other useful purpose. If he will appoint a committee of ex-Communists whom I could recommend, he might really learn what it is all about.

Or, better still, if he sat down for a quiet evening with J. Edgar Hoover, the greatest authority on the subject of the preservation of civil rights in our country, he would learn a great deal without spending one cent of the $15,000,000.

Benson's Buying Butter

The decision of Secretary of Agriculture Benson on butter is spotlighting the plight of the nation's dairy farmers. Benson on February 27 annqunced that the government would continue to buy butter for another 12 months beginning April 1 — supporting dairy products at 90 per cent of parity.

The government has been buying butter since November 30 last—at the rate of one million pounds a day. Recently that rate has been doubled. And the peak seasonal production of butter is still several months away.

The government now holds about 91 million pounds of butter. Butter is perishable; much of this stock threatens to be a total loss to the government. About 20 million pounds have been diverted to the Federal School Lunch Program. Some may be turned over to other relief programs and to CARE. A New York butter dealer urged on March 1 that the government institute "butter bargain days," giving away a pound of surplus butter with every pound bought at retail.

"The trend of butter consumption, of course, has declined for many years and margarine use has gone up", Secretary Benson said in an interview made public this week. "Vegetable fats are now being used in ice cream and other products which once used butter almost exclusively. On the other hand, we've had an increase in population. The consumpton of fluid milk has increased, and the consumption of powdered milk has increased."

Benson spoke of a need to "get the great distribution agencies (he cited the National Association of Grocers and the National Association of Food Chains) to co-operate in selling a surplus of any particular item." Senator Aiken (R., Vt.), chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, has declared that farmers should produce a low-fat-content butter to compete with oleo in price.

The sale of colored margarine in direct competition with butter is still prohibited in some states, but some of these laws may be repealed by state legislatures meeting this year. Margarine generally sells at less than half the price of butter.

According to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, consumption of butter this year probably will decline to a new record low of just above eight pounds per person. In the years from 1935 to 1939 Americans were eating 16.7 pounds of butter a year each.

But in 1952 the per capita consumption of margarine was 7.7 pounds, and Americans are expected to eat at least that much of it this year. In the years from 1935 to 1939, Americans ate only 2.9 pounds of margarine a year each.

The government was in the butter market in a big way back in October 1950. Then, with Grade-A butter selling at about 64½ cents a pound, the Commodity Credit Corporation offered 125 million pounds at prices slightly below the market in all states except California, Washington, and Oregon. In addition, 61 million pounds of Grade-B butter were put on sale. Sale of government butter then was viewed as a price control weapon against inflation.

Spaceman's Luck

Nowhere is the spirit of "unification" among the armed forces placed under greater strain than in a cavernous office near the mail entrance to the Pentagon. Here are based the propaganda fountains of the three services. The Army "information desk" mercifully separates the Navy and the Air Force.

Here is to be found real trench warfare, with sapping, mining, attack and counter-attack, psychological warfare—the works. Take the case of the Navy's "space suit."

With no little pride the blue water service announced the other day development of the "first full pressure flying suit." This means, the Navy said, that it will be possible for men to fly safely in outer space. By no coincidence at all the Air Force had a rebuttal ready. Heck, sniffed the Air Force, we had a suit like that in the works, but we abandoned it way back in 1944 for a better model.

Lobbing over a grenade they had apparently been saving for a long, long time, Air Force publicists pointed out archly that the pilot of the Navy Skyrocket wore an Air Force pressure suit in a historic flight in the summer of 1951 which broke all speed and altitude marks. The Navy sniffed that the Air Force suit was the best available then, but it isn't any more.

Having happily ambushed this Navy patrol the Air Force went back to figuring new reasons why the long range bomber concept is better than carrier based aircraft and whistling a tune called "Spaceman's Luck." The Navy was left with what it could salvage.

The populace may be bewildered, but it should be heartened by evidence that both services are working on the sartorially correct thing to wear in outer space. But would it be too much to ask why both arms aren't working in conjunction?

Senatorial Elections

Other things being equal, the Republicans would expect to lose some Senate seats, and hence their present Senate majority of one, in the elections for Congress next year. The party in power almosts always (1934 was one of the rare exceptions) loses seats in both the Senate and the House in the midterm elections.

But things aren't equal in the 1954 senatorial elections. The breaks are in favor of the GOP in the 32 Senate seats now down to be contested. For one thing, Republicans hold only 11 of those 32 seats, whereas 21 of them are occupied by Democrats.

Foranother thing, the Republicans can safely count on retaining seven of their 11 seats to be contested, facing real fights in only four (Idaho, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Michigan). The Democrats, on the other hand, face real fights, at least from the present look of things, to retain their present seats from 10 states—Colorado, Delaware, Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, Montana, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, Wyoming.

In 1952 the breaks favored the Democrats in the senatorial elections. They held less than one-half of the seats at stake, and few in states that looked doubtful, whereas the Republicans seemed to face real fights to retain most of their Senate seats. Yet the GOP took three seats, net, from the Democrats—Eisenhower, running ahead of the Republican ticket in most states, carried in certain GOP senatorial candidates on his coattails.

How To Keep Well

Scalp Ringworm In Children

Ringworm is a common disorder of the scalp in school children. After the infection becomes well established in the schoolroom, it is difficult to control. This is the reason why prevention is stressed and, along this line, many schools insist upon periodic checkups with the filtered ultraviolet light, called the Wood's glass.

Children pass around their germs in wholesale fashion. In an auditorium, they squirm constantly rubbing their heads against the back of the seat. If ringworm of the scalp is present, the next child who occupies the seat is likely to pick up the infection. Youngsters try on one another's caps and hats and a towel is something with which to dry the hands and face without any regard to who used it before. The same can be said of the comb and brush. At any rate, when a highly contagious organism is placed in this environment, it spreads like a prairie fire.

Ringworm is a misnomer, as the causative agent is not a worm but a fungus and the lesions are seldom ringshaped. They usually begin as small coin sized or irregular patches upon the scalp. The hairs in this area are lack-luster and are broken off close to the scalp. They have the appearance of having been nibbled off to produce the effect of partial baldness. The patches are covered with minute, whitish, or slate colored scales. Various degrees of inflammation are present and occasionally the bald spots itch, especially when the scalp is dry.

When the lights are turned out and the rays of a special ultraviolet light are directed to the scalp, the infected hairs and scales become fluorescent and glow in the dark. Because the normal scalp does not fluoresce, this light has become one of the best ways of detecting scalp ringworm. It will locate spots no bigger than a pinpoint. Furthermore, the light serves in treatment as a guide to denote progress.

There are hundreds of different forms of fungi, several of which attack the scalp. Some are more amenable than others to treatment and it is important in each case to identify the species. This is done by removing an infected hair and sending it to the laboratory for study. A recent report from Arizona, for example, states that Microsporum lanosum is the most frequent form of ringworm in that locality. This organism prefers dogs or cats and responds readily in humans to removal of the hairs by hand plus the application of an ointment containing salicylic acid and ammoniated mercury. Elsewhere in the country M. audouini is more prevalent. This is one of the more stubborn fungi and in the majority of cases, X-ray is necessary. It is valuable, but many parents are concerned about this agent. The amount of X-ray used to kill the fungus, however, is so small it affects only the surface. It causes the hair to fall out temporarily and in so doing eliminates the habitat of the organisms.

One attack of ringworm of the scalp does not confer immunity, which explains why a single case is the signal for the entire community to be on guard. One untreated child may reinfect the others and undo all the labor of parents, teachers, nurses, and physicians.

PROLONGED ULCER

D.S.P. writes: Is it possible for a duodenal ulcer to continue for 15 years or more?

REPLY

Yes, but when the lesion persists over this length of time some thought should be given to surgery. After all, we live only once, and why should we spend the best years of our life in distress?

12-YEAR-OLD SMOKER

D. S. writes: I'm 12 years old and my parents say smoking will stunt my growth. Is this true?

REPLY

Why not believe your parents when they say smoking will stunt your growth? This is part of the reasoning behind the advice to teen-agers not to smoke until they have attained full growth.

GALL BLADDER DIET

H. R. writes: Is the gallstone diet the same as the diet for an inflamed gall bladder?

REPLY

Yes, because in both instances the purpose of the diet is to minimize the work of the gall bladder. Furthermore, whenever stones are present, infection is likely to exist.

CANCER "CURE"

Mrs. T. writes: I have heard of a doctor who claims he can detect cancer by putting a few drops of the patient's blood on a tissue and if cancer is present he can cure it with vitamins and fruit juices. Have you heard of this method?

REPLY

To my knowledge there are no reliable blood tests for cancer, nor is the disease cured with vitamins or fruit juices. This hoax should be brought to the attention of your local health authorities.

Secret Yalta Notes Will Be Pigeonholed; Senators Consider Disciplining AFL Editor; Senator Daniel Who Received Oil Support Leads Attack

WASHINGTON — Secretary John Foster Dulles, meeting with top officers of the State Department, turned to Chip Bohlen, new envoy to Russia and chief interpreter for FDR at Yalta.

"What's this I hear about some running accounts of Yalta being on file here?" he asked. "I told the senators that there are no such notes, and thought there were not. Now I hear there are."

"We got them back from the White House," replied Bohlen. "They carry little of importance, mostly rather bum jokes by the President and Mr. Churchill. The senators have all the agreement material. The stenographic notes are not essential. Some of the jokes might unintentionally hurt the feelings of one or another of our current allies."

"If I'm queried by the senators I'll stick to my old answer," countered Dulles. "I don't know of any stenographic notes in the files."

"I suppose that's all you can do," observed Bohlen.

Penalty For An Editor

The Senate Interior Committee called a special secret session early this week to consider the question of disciplining or even recording the indictment of Bernard Tassler, managing editor of the American Federation of Labor magazine, "The American Federationist" for his criticism of tidelands oil senators.

This unusual procedure was hushed up behind closed doors, but senators were told to be present at 9:30 a. m., 30 minutes before the public session opened. A special request was made to have a quorum present in order to take important action.

Simultaneously, Editor Tassler was called by Stewart French, clerk of the Interior Committee, and asked to be present. Tassler replied that he would be glad to appear before a public session, but said he would not participate in any star-chamber proceedings.

What caused all the Senate indignation was an editorial in the Washington News captioned :

"The 300-Billion Dollar Offshore Oil Giveaway."

Price Daniel Fumes

The man who got literally purple of face over this ad and wanted to discipline Tassler was freshman Senator Price Daniel of Texas, who received heavy campaign contributions from Texas oilmen and who made tidelands oil one of the chief issues of his campaign. The paid ad raised the question as to why a small group of senators were in such a rush to pass the tidelands oil bill. "Is it," the ad asked, "a pay-off for lavish campaign contributions last fall?"

When the secret meeting convened, however, Senator Daniel, a freshman Republicrat, kept silent. He let older GOP Senator Guy Cordon of Oregon cary the ball.

"The American people want to know," Cordon read the ad, his face flushing, "why Congress is in such an unseemly rush to give away $300,000,000. What's the explanation? Is it true that the plan is to rob the American people for the benefit of a few, greedy, powerful interests?

"Let there be a searching, open, honest bipartisan investigation to find out whether it is true that some high administration leaders and some members of Congress now sweating to rush through the offshore giveaway . . . had their election campaigns of last fall lavishly financed by the oil industry . . .

"The American people are highly suspicious, because they know that it just doesn't make sense for senators and congressmen from the 45 states which would lose heavily by the proposed giveaway, to be working for the giveaway legislation . . .

"This is the reason for the widespread charge that the giveaway deal is just a pay-off to those who contributed lavishly to campaign funds last fall. Is this really true? Or is the charge untrue? . . ."

Oil Money Flowed

Senator Cordon looked around the room indignantly as he finished reading, then handed the ad to Senator Molly Malone of Nevada. By that time only seven senators had arrived, not enough for a quorum, and a quorum is necessary to take such important action as the disciplining of a newsman.

So the committee went into a public session, and the question of proceeding against Tassler was left in mid-air. Wiser senators are hoping Cordon and Daniel will cool off.

NOTE—Illustrating the oil contributions outside Texas, here is a partial listing of the $53,000 given away by Texas oilman H. R. Cullen during the recent campaign: Eisenhower, $5,000; McCarthy in Wisconsin, $5,000; Jenner in Indiana, $3,500, Cain in Washington, $1,000; Brewster in Maine $1,000; Watkins in Utah, $1,000; Pat Hurley in New Mexico, $1,000; Malone in Nevada, $1,000; Ecton in Montana, $1,000; Kem in Missouri, $1,000. Price Daniel of Texas also got $5,000. All of the above have favored tidelands oil except Malone, Ecton and Watkins, and it now appears that Watkins has changed his views and is for the oil interests.

A Southerner's Tribute

One of the most shocked over the late Senator Bob La Follette's suicide was the old political warhorse, Senator Walter George of Georgia, who fought many legislative battles against La Follette.

It was George who delivered probably the most glowing tribute to La Follette's memory on the Senate floor. Afterward Senator Paul Douglas of Illinois, who has locked horns with George on occasion congratulated the veteran Southerner.

There was an intense look on George's face as he replied very simply:

"I loved that boy."

On The Line

By BOB CONSIDINE

WASHINGTON (INS) — The most attention the constitution of the United States had had in a long time, except that directed at the document by the Supreme Court, came recently when it was moved into its new and permanent home in the archives building.

Troops stood guard with tommy guns at ready, and the priceless parchment was carried into place encased in a special frame containing helium and other preservatives.

Chances are that none of the troops on hand, none of the document bearers and precious few of the official party on hand to watch the historic event could answer many questions about the codes under which we set up this government and which we have prospered.

Well, if a couple of Los Angeles teachers, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Findlay, have anything to say about it, we'll all soon understand what we tried (and generally failed) to understand when we memorized the preamble in the third grade and blacked out on the meat of the Constitution.

The Findlays have written, and Stanford University press has published, "Your Rugged Constitution."

For $1.15, Stanford will send you a copy (.75 if you order 10,000 or more) and you'll never regret it. Or, better, you'll never forget it. For the couple has rephrased the great law of the land into simple 20th century language. They have taken the Constitution, clause by clause, article by article, printed the original text of each section and then, on a facing page, the simplified version of those words. On top of that there are short explanatory boxes at the bottom of the page, explaining what you yield, or deny, in that particular passage, and what you get.

For example, Article One, Section 10, Clause One of the founding fathers reads:

"No state shall enter into any treaty, alliance, or confederation; grant letters of marque and reprisal; coin money; emit bills of credit; make anything but gold and silver coin tender in payment of debts; pass any bill or attainder, ex post facto law, or law impairing the obligation of contracts, or grant any title of nobility."

The Findlays reduce this to a cartoon of Uncle Sam telling an assortment of personified states, "You states must all keep an eye on this clause! It forbids you to do certain things which the people don't intend having anybody do!"

"You deny: To the states the rights (A) to make treaties, coin money, or use other powers which the Constitution gives to the federal government; or (B) to do certain other things, including the punishment of a person without a trial in court.

"You get: Assurances (A) that no state will take over certain duties assigned to the federal government; (B) that no state will take certain powers which you do not intend to give to anyone."

To clarify the article dealing with legislative powers, the Findlays visualize the people as a powerhouse, with the people transmitting power to the Senate and the House of Representatives.

This remarkable pamphlet could re-educate the people of the country. It was made possible by a grant to the Stanford school of education by two brothers, Gordon and Allan Crary. Herbert Hoover was one of the first to hail it. Its first big customer was 84-year-old William Robertson Coe, retired industrialist, who ordered 100,000 for distribution to employes of companies of which he was a director.

So much was said about the sacred Constitution, during the last political campaign, that there must be more confusion than ever about this most loved and least read bit of American literature. "Your Rugged Constitution," not only makes fascinating reading but will enable countless thousands of visitors to the archives building to stare at the precious parchment for the first time with a light of true understanding in their eyes.

The Invisible Tax Man

We said the French have solved the problem of hidden taxes by hiding their money first.

We took a special excursion to Washington to find an expert on hidden taxes. He was hiding himself.

You cannot locate these mysterious excises by looking under bicycle seats.

The citizen knows the loot is all stacked up on the wrong side of the chicken wire. He pushes the plunder through the window marked "elimination." And gets a stock of receipts for chips.

An economic lecturer told me there were 237 ambushed taxes on a platter of French pastry. He explained it includes the waiter's imported racing car.

Maybe the way to balance the budget is to hide more stuff. In case the tax squad finds your private cookie jar—don't quote me.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — The policy of the United States Government as a consequence of the ending of the dictatorship of Joseph Stalin will of necessity be based on one assumption. This is that any change in personalities at the helm in Moscow does not mean peace or an easing of world tension until there is concrete evidence to the contrary.

Hence, the build-up of armament in America and overseas will continue as per program. If and when the armies of the Soviet Union are demobilized and there is a withdrawal of aid to the Chinese Communist military forces in Korea, there can safely be a change in policy here.

Despite all the speculation as to what the absence of Stalin from the topmost position in the Russian regime means or may mean, the American government, which bears the major responsibility for protecting the free world against further attack by the Communist regime, cannot make its plans on the basis of wishful thinking or guessing.

Scraps of Paper

From the standpoint of the Moscow Communist leaders, there isn't any good reason to alter their policies either. They have not intended to begin a large-scale war for the simple reason that infiltration and local wars have scared the Allies and bluffed them into limiting their reprisals. The United Nations, moreover, has demonstrated that its resolutions are mere scraps of paper and that the Soviet Union can actually supply arms to an aggressor without undergoing any ostracism in that international body. From the Kremlin viewpoint, things really look good.

So, why should the Kremlin leaders change their policies if they are apparently winning success without committing a single regiment of their own to the "cold war"? There are rumors, of course, that reckless members of the Politburo might try to start a march across Europe, which would mean the beginning of large-scale war on an atomic level. But since Stalin has proved to his colleagues how superfluous such a step is toward winning a victory over the West, it seems illogical to believe that any such chances would be taken to arouse the Russian populace. The Soviet people are as pacifist-minded today as are the people of most of the Western countries. There is in the Soviet population no will to fight unnecessary wars, especially when there has been no attack requiring a defense of the homeland. Memories of 5,000,000 dead and many more wounded are still vivid in the Soviet Union.

The Western Allies will, of course, do their utmost to capitalize on the apparent end to the unity of the Stalin dictatorship. Efforts will be made by propaganda and governmental policies to drive a wedge between the Soviet people and the Moscow government. Now is the time to hammer home to the Russian people facts about the menace to peace which has been developed by Kremlin policy.

President Eisenhower must have had something like this in mind as he issued his message of sympathy for the Russian people—a masterful expression—in which he said:

"Regardless of the identity of government personalities, the prayer of us Americans continues to be that the Almighty will watch over the people of that vast country and bring them, in His wisdom, opportunity to live their lives in a world where all men and women and children can dwell in peace and comradeship."

Chance For Spiritual Side

Beamed no doubt by radio to the Soviet Union and doubtless published in the Russian press, this message presented an opportunity to reflect American purpose accurately in contradiction of the diatribes about the "warmongers" of the United States which have been appearing so often in Soviet newspapers.

The word from the Vatican, too, where the Pope prayed for the conversion of Stalin to repentance for his evil deeds and for "a better future for the oppressed Russian people," is of profound importance. Events in Moscow will furnish an opportunity, especially in the solemn mood in which the Soviet people will be living in the next few days, for the spokesmen of free institutions to re-emphasize the spiritual side. It is significant that the Moscow censors permitted news dispatches to tell of the prayers in the churches of Jews and Russian orthodox Catholics in the Soviet Union beseeching God to restore Stalin to health.

The sudden change in the Soviet Union's top command will not bring an immediate crisis. Most of the stir for the time being will be on this side of the iron curtain, where the tendency will be to exaggerate the significance of the occurrence and to assume that the removal of one evil man suddenly makes the other 12 in the Kremlin virtuous. It will take a little while for the disillusionment to come—but it will come.

These Days

Running Interference

The new agency of the Ford Foundation, "Fund for the Republic," of which Paul Hoffman is the head, is undertaking an enterprise which requires scrutiny because it is the first time that an eleemosynary institution has entered upon a political activity. While the "Fund for the Republic" claims that it is opposed to communism, it obviously intends to run an inquiry that will parallel the investigations of congressional committees.

There can be no objection to private citizens organizing for the purpose of making an objective study of any function of government. However, such a private body, to be respected, needs to publish not only the distinguished names who act as a front, but also the paid employes who do the actual work. It has been found in the past that men and women of dubious reputations find employment behind such fronts and pursue courses which tragically end in refuge behind the Fifth Amendment.

The names of the paid employes, the staff of Paul Hoffman's new committee, have not been made public and therefore there is no possibility of scrutiny for the purpose of appraising the objectivity of its work. However, one hears that among them are some who say that while they themselves are opposed to communism, they are equally opposed to the methods used by congressional committees and anti-Communist groups to ferret out traitors, spies and agents of the Stalinist conspiracy.

If this is correct, it will be interesting to see what methods they criticize and what other methods might be used for these purposes. It will also be interesting to see how they spend $15,000,000 for this purpose and who gets the money.

To contrast the use of economic power by a private foundation, it is important to note that while the Ford Foundation spends $15,000,000 for this purpose, the House Committee on Un-American Activities has an appropriation of $300,000; the McCarthy Committee, $200,000; the Jenner Committee, $200,000. Senator McCarran, with a smaller appropriation, ably uncovered a vile ring of spies and Communists in the United Nations.

While inquiry of every nature is to be welcomed, it is startling that this particular type requires the huge sum of $15,000,000. The amount seems to be too large for the target sought. For instance, research workers can study effectively the methods employed by congressional committees by analyzing the testimony taken before such committees, all of which is printed and available and costs no money if read in the public libraries or if obtained from the committees. Perhaps the Ford Foundation will re-investigate these cases or hold private hearings of its own. Perhaps it will retry the Alger Hiss case or send a copy of the Earl of Jowitt's forthcoming book on Hiss to every library in the country. That would cost a good deal of money, although hardly $15,000,000.

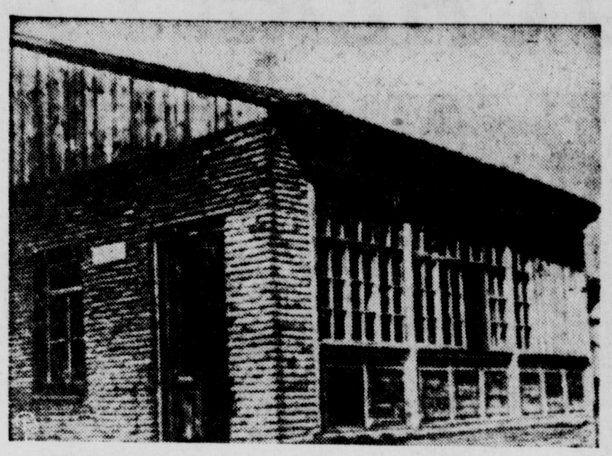

Maybe $15,000,000 seems a huge sum to me, I being just a laborer who toils in the fields, whereas Paul Hoffman has distributed billions of American dollars to all the nations of the world and is therefore accustomed to larger figures. Admittedly, there is a difference in point of view. Nevertheless, it seems to be a lot of money to spend on analyzing Senator Joe McCarthy's methods or to produce the startling evidence that because of a resolution publicly passed at an American Legion convention, some citizens will not attend a motion picture in which a Communist is employed, or that a technique has been devised to make it easier for persons cited as Communists or fellow-travelers to clear themselves by their own means.

All the information on this subject is available and can be read in "The American Legion Magazine," and other publications, including this column. If Mr. Hoffman wants further data on the Hollywood situation, I shall be glad to provide it to him for nothing and he can then give the $15,000,000 for cancer research or some other useful purpose. If he will appoint a committee of ex-Communists whom I could recommend, he might really learn what it is all about.

Or, better still, if he sat down for a quiet evening with J. Edgar Hoover, the greatest authority on the subject of the preservation of civil rights in our country, he would learn a great deal without spending one cent of the $15,000,000.

Highlights In Life Of Russia's Josef Stalin

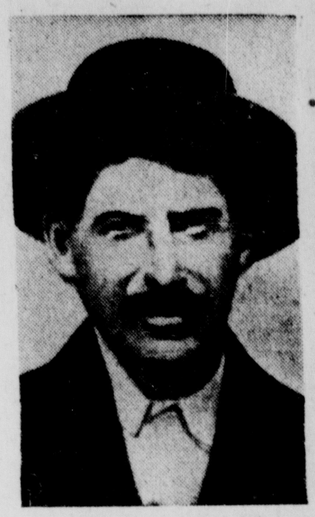

IN THIS RUSSIAN SHANTY was born on Dec. 21, 1879, Josef Vissainovich Djugashvili who chose, years later, to be known as Stalin ("a man of steel"). The place was Gori, a village in the province of Tiflis, Georgia. His father was a cobbler who wanted Josef to follow the trade. But his mother wanted Josef to become a priest of the Orthodox church.

A THEOLOGICAL seminary was not for Josef. At the age of 13 he had joined an "underground group" of youngsters interested in Marxian doctrines. About the time this photo was taken, he faced expulsion from school as a member of a social-democrat clique. In 1899 he was out.

THE SECRET POLICE of Tiflis began watching Josef in 1898. Branded a young revolutionist, he had been jailed eight times between 1902 and 1914 and sent to Siberia seven times. His escapes were as common as his arrests and the above police identification card was widely circulated. Finally he was shipped off to an Arctic wilderness. When the Czarists fell, Siberia was emptied of exiles and Josef was soon freed.

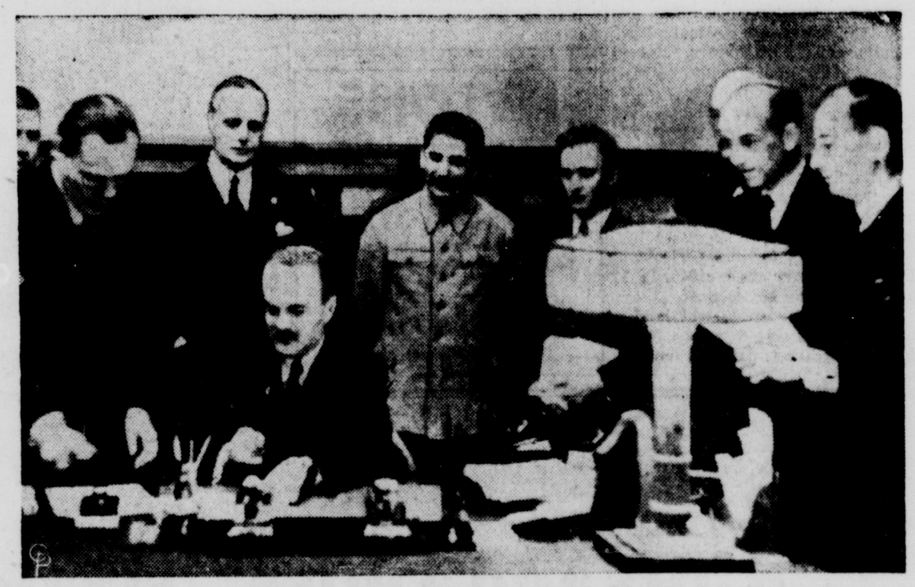

AND NOW Josef was launched on a career destined to make him one of history's outstanding figures. Already he had attracted the attention of Vladimir Ilyich Lenin, founder and guiding spirit of the Soviet Republics. Lenin corresponded with young Stalin during the long years of exile in Siberia.

JUST HOW DEARLY Russia paid for trusting the pledge of a Nazi, all the world knows today. Across the fertile fields of the Ukraine, the "scorched earth" policy left vast blackened patches. From south to north, cities were laid in waste and factories became grim skeletons. The test was Stalingrad where, after a siege that has no counterpart in history, the valiant populace finally broke the chains. Here the first German troops began to withdraw. Their retreat is considered a turning point of the war with Germany's chance for victory shattered.

HERE STALIN'S DAY OF TRIUMPH is at hand. For in 1924 Lenin was dead—just two years after Stalin's big chance came. And now, as the picture shows, a huge parade of celebrants marched through the Moscow streets and jammed the Red Square. They carried huge banners bearing his likeness and acclaimed the approach of a new Russian era.

THE NON-AGGRESSION PACT with Germany appeared to have settled a question the world was asking: What will Russia do about the war? It was signed on Oct. 11, 1939—and here is the scene of the costly blunder as the Soviet chieftans took Hitler at his word. Foreign Minister Molotov signs the document as Stalin stands in background and Nazi Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop is over Molotov's shoulder.

THE WAR AT AN END, the machinery for world peace began to function. Stalin ("man of steel") had earned the name he gave himself. Now one of the "Big Three" and a vital world figure he sits at Teheran in conference with Prime Minister Winston Churchill and the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Highlights In Life Of Russia's Josef Stalin

IN THIS RUSSIAN SHANTY was born on Dec. 21, 1879, Josef Vissainovich Djugashvili who chose, years later, to be known as Stalin ("a man of steel"). The place was Gori, a village in the province of Tiflis, Georgia. His father was a cobbler who wanted Josef to follow the trade. But his mother wanted Josef to become a priest of the Orthodox church.

A THEOLOGICAL seminary was not for Josef. At the age of 13 he had joined an "underground group" of youngsters interested in Marxian doctrines. About the time this photo was taken, he faced expulsion from school as a member of a social-democrat clique. In 1899 he was out.

THE SECRET POLICE of Tiflis began watching Josef in 1898. Branded a young revolutionist, he had been jailed eight times between 1902 and 1914 and sent to Siberia seven times. His escapes were as common as his arrests and the above police identification card was widely circulated. Finally he was shipped off to an Arctic wilderness. When the Czarists fell, Siberia was emptied of exiles and Josef was soon freed.

AND NOW Josef was launched on a career destined to make him one of history's outstanding figures. Already he had attracted the attention of Vladimir Ilyich Lenin, founder and guiding spirit of the Soviet Republics. Lenin corresponded with young Stalin during the long years of exile in Siberia.

JUST HOW DEARLY Russia paid for trusting the pledge of a Nazi, all the world knows today. Across the fertile fields of the Ukraine, the "scorched earth" policy left vast blackened patches. From south to north, cities were laid in waste and factories became grim skeletons. The test was Stalingrad where, after a siege that has no counterpart in history, the valiant populace finally broke the chains. Here the first German troops began to withdraw. Their retreat is considered a turning point of the war with Germany's chance for victory shattered.

HERE STALIN'S DAY OF TRIUMPH is at hand. For in 1924 Lenin was dead —just two years after Stalin's big chance came. And now, as the picture shows, a huge parade of celebrants marched through the Moscow streets and jammed the Red Square. They carried huge banners bearing his likeness and acclaimed the approach of a new Russian era.

THE NON-AGGRESSION PACT with Germany appeared to have settled a question the world was asking: What will Russia do about the war? It was signed on Oct. 11, 1939—and here is the scene of the costly blunder as the Soviet chieftans took Hitler at his word. Foreign Minister Molotov signs the document as Stalin stands in background and Nazi Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop is over Molotov's shoulder.

THE WAR AT AN END, the machinery for world peace began to function. Stalin ("man of steel") had earned the name he gave himself. Now one of the "Big Three" and a vital world figure he sits at Teheran in conference with Prime Minister Winston Churchill and the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Annapolis Pastor To Preach Here

Rev. Charles F. Kirtley, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church in Annapolis since 1948, will speak at First Methodist Church on Bedford Street each evening next week, beginning Sunday, as part of the United Evangelistic Mission of the Methodist Church.

Rev. Kirkley will preach at First Methodist Church at the 7:30 p. m. Sunday and at the same hour each weekday evening.

Since becoming pastor of the church in Annapolis, he has supervised the construction of a new church and education building valued at over $200,000.

Rev. William James Elliott, pastor of the local church, reports that Rev. Kirkley is an accomplished musician as well as an excellent preacher. He is a pianist and also sings, having appeared with the Annual Conference Male Quartet.

The Annapolis clergyman is active in the "Youth For Christ" and the Christian Business Men's Committee in Annapolis and nearby Eastport.

Jones Still Held After Shooting

Raymond T. Jones, 31-year-old father who allegedly fired a shotgun blast which narrowly missed a Bellevue Street woman Wednesday, continues to be held for further interrogation.

No formal charge had been filed last night.

Police said Jones fired a 20-gauge shotgun at Mrs. Helen Roberts, 36, of 9 Bellevue Street, outside her home. Seven months earlier, last August 13, Jones had been convicted of assaulting Mrs. Roberts.

After that squabble, Magistrate Donald W. Mason handed Jones, Mrs. Roberts and her husband, Edward, suspended 30-day jail sentences on assault charges, paroled them and ordered the families to separate. The Joneses, who had lived at 22 Bellevue Street, moved to LaVale. Principal witnesses against Jones at the trial were Mrs. Roberts and Jones' wife Audrey.

Officers who talked to Jones after the shooting episode Wednesday said he blamed Mrs. Roberts for his domestic difficulties.

Vo-Ag Survey Begins Here

Three agriculture education leaders visited four Allegany County public schools yesterday as they began their survey of vocational agriculture as taught here.

Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster said that he visited Oldtown and Flintstone High Schools with the three men yesterday morning. They are Harry M. McDonald, state supervisor of vocational agriculture; Arthur M. Ahalt, head of the Agriculture Education Department at the University of Maryland and Dr. Charles W. Hill, in charge of the Rural Organization Department at West Virginia University.

Yesterday afternoon they went to the new Mt. Savage High School to question students to see whether a vo-ag program should be started there. Then they went to Beall High School in Frostburg, which has some vo-ag instruction.

Today they will wind up their survey. McDonald expects it will be a week or 10 days before their findings are reported.

Proposed Delay

after a briefing from Comptroller Tawes and being assured that benefits would apply to others besides income taxpayers he was more favorably inclined.

But Redden said he still was not convinced the plan was "entirely free from doubt" and considered a waiting period sound policy.

Outside sources reported later the idea of a delay was one of the matters discussed at a conference with the governor attended by Tawes, Della, Minority Leader Kimble (R-Allegany) and Budget Director Rennie.

After Redden presented his amendment, Sen. Turner (D-Queen Anne's) insisted Kimble had told him such a change would be acceptable to the Republican administration.

Both McKeldin and Kimble have publicly urged caution in setting up the new tax procedure.

Aside from the tax dispute, both Senate and House sessions were routine. The legislators took off early to be guests of Mayor D'Alesandro on a boat ride around Baltimore harbor.

a Stalin heir-apparent, and indeed had killed him in 1948, the charges said.

The announcement of the doctors' plot contained sharp criticism of the security forces of the state, headed by Beria.

Stalin ruled Russia as undisputed dictator for nearly 30 years. Through communism, he extended his sway beyond the borders of the Soviet Union and its 200 million people to areas encompassing another half billion people.

Fought The Nazis

He reached the height of his power when he led the Soviet Union against the Nazis of Adolf Hitler as an ally of the United States and Great Britain. He was one of the "Big Three" of the world—with Britain's Winston Churchill and America's Franklin D. Roosevelt.

And in the end, he died of much the same sort of brain stroke that killed Roosevelt eight years ago.

Stalin made a deal with Hitler in 1939 which shocked the rest of the world. The deal unleashed the war, but it granted Stalin precious time. When the Nazis struck at him, he was ready. He scorched the earth of Mother Russia and he fought. He fought so well that he punctured the myth of Nazi invincibility.

At Stalingrad, 10 years ago, the Russians fought for a city, block by block, house by house and room by room. There they smashed a great German army. In Russian history Stalingrad is known as the turning point of the war. From there the way led straight to victory and the world cheered Stalin and his countrymen.

But there were clouds in the bright sky of Allied Co-operation. When the war ended, the wartime store of good will was auickly exhausted as Stalin and his men embarked on the cold war. Poland and Romania and Bulgaria and Albania and Yugoslavia fell into Communist ranks. Czechoslovakia toppled, Greece rocked before the revolutionists directed from the Kremlin, China became red. There was blood in Malaya and in Indochina. The Communists tried to pinch off Berlin with a blockade.

West Fights Back

The Western world, startled and stung, took time to learn how to fight such a war. But it learned. The Communist drive was fended off in Finland, the Red rebels in Greece were whipped. An airlift beat the Berlin blockade. Soldiers and fighting policemen stood fast in Indochina and Mayala.

And finally, the Western world, through the United Nations, took up arms to fight Communist invaders of South Korean. But Stalin did not retreat nor give an inch. The fight goes on, as does the cold war elsewhere.

His life of never-ending intrigue, ruthless ambition and fantastic power helped shape much of the world's history. The grandson of a chattel slave, his father was a ne'er-do-well cobbler and his mother a peasant. She dedicated him to God in his childhood, but he schemed, plotted, clawed and killed and made his way, over bloody paths, to the very top.

He was christened Joseph Vissarionovitch Djugashvili in Gori, Georgia, in the south of Russia, on Dec. 21, 1879.

He had a withered left hand, but his right was strong and brutal. Soon he was hunted by the czar's police. Under the name of Koba, he was an organizer for the Social Democratic party at Batum. The name Koba he used until the revolution of 1917, when he became Stalin.

Slowly but ruthlessly, without pity, he consolidated, he entrenched himself. Those who failed to join him he killed, some even with the legal semblance of a trial. He smashed all opposition and became what he was when he died—the most powerful dictator the world has ever known.

Had Family Life

He had a family life. His first wife was Katerina Svanidze, who bore him a son before she died of pneumonia in 1917. The son, Jacob, is believed to have perished while a Nazi prisoner.

His second wife was Nadejda (Nadia) Alliluieva, whom he married when she was 17, in 1919. She bore a son, Vasily, now a lieutenant general in the Soviet Air Force, and a daughter, Svetlana, believed to be the wife of Mihail Kaganovich, son of Lazar M. Kaganovich, only Jew in a high post at the Kremlin.

Nadejda died on the night of Nov. 9, 1932, in the Kremlin, under mysterious circumstances. There is a story that Stalin shot her in the heat of a quarrel. His last wife was believed to have been Rosa Kaganovich, sister of Lazar Kaganovich.

Annapolis Pastor To Preach Here

Rev. Charles F. Kirtley, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church in Annapolis since 1948, will speak at First Methodist Church on Bedford Street each evening next week, beginning Sunday, as part of the United Evangelistic Mission of the Methodist Church.

Rev. Kirkley will preach at First Methodist Church at the 7:30 p. m. Sunday and at the same hour each weekday evening.

Since becoming pastor of the church in Annapolis, he has supervised the construction of a new church and education building valued at over $200,000.

Rev. William James Elliott, pastor of the local church, reports that Rev. Kirkley is an accomplished musician as well as an excellent preacher. He is a pianist and also sings, having appeared with the Annual Conference Male Quartet.

The Annapolis clergyman is active in the "Youth For Christ" and the Christian Business Men's Committee in Annapolis and nearby Eastport.

Jones Still Held After Shooting

Raymond T. Jones, 31-year-old father who allegedly fired a shotgun blast which narrowly missed a Bellevue Street woman Wednesday, continues to be held for further interrogation.

No formal charge had been filed last night.

Police said Jones fired a 20-gauge shotgun at Mrs. Helen Roberts, 36, of 9 Bellevue Street, outside her home. Seven months earlier, last August 13, Jones had been convicted of assaulting Mrs. Roberts.

After that squabble, Magistrate Donald W. Mason handed Jones, Mrs. Roberts and her husband, Edward, suspended 30-day jail sentences on assault charges, paroled them and ordered the families to separate. The Joneses, who had lived at 22 Bellevue Street, moved to LaVale. Principal witnesses against Jones at the trial were Mrs. Roberts and Jones' wife Audrey.

Officers who talked to Jones after the shooting episode Wednesday said he blamed Mrs. Roberts for his domestic difficulties.

Vo-Ag Survey Begins Here

Three agriculture education leaders visited four Allegany County public schools yesterday as they began their survey of vocational agriculture as taught here.

Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster said that he visited Oldtown and Flintstone High Schools with the three men yesterday morning. They are Harry M. McDonald, state supervisor of vocational agriculture; Arthur M. Ahalt, head of the Agriculture Education Department at the University of Maryland and Dr. Charles W. Hill, in charge of the Rural Organization Department at West Virginia University.

Yesterday afternoon they went to the new Mt. Savage High School to question students to see whether a vo-ag program should be started there. Then they went to Beall High School in Frostburg, which has some vo-ag instruction.

Today they will wind up their survey. McDonald expects it will be a week or 10 days before their findings are reported.

Proposed Delay

after a briefing from Comptroller Tawes and being assured that benefits would apply to others besides income taxpayers he was more favorably inclined.

But Redden said he still was not convinced the plan was "entirely free from doubt" and considered a waiting period sound policy.

Outside sources reported later the idea of a delay was one of the matters discussed at a conference with the governor attended by Tawes, Della, Minority Leader Kimble (R-Allegany) and Budget Director Rennie.

After Redden presented his amendment, Sen. Turner (D-Queen Anne's) insisted Kimble had told him such a change would be acceptable to the Republican administration.

Both McKeldin and Kimble have publicly urged caution in setting up the new tax procedure.

Aside from the tax dispute, both Senate and House sessions were routine. The legislators took off early to be guests of Mayor D'Alesandro on a boat ride around Baltimore harbor.

A tractor maintenance class will be held today at 7:30 p. m. at the Light and Decker Company building on South Centre Street for Allegany County 4-H Boys Club members.

Joseph M. Steger, assistant county farm agent, said the course will be divided into two sections with Gary Teter instructing the advanced group and Norman Smith the beginners. Charles Robosson, 3d, will teach air cleaner maintenance.

Steger gave a quiz to a number of youths last night at a meeting at the Court House with the following boys qualifying for the advanced course in tractor maintenance.

R. V. Grabenstein, RD 4; J. E. Miltenberger Jr., of Ridgeley; Thomas Buser, of Oldtown; Edward Miller, RD 1, Frostburg; Donald Platt, of Paw Paw; James Hartsock, of RD 2, city; Joseph Robey and Herbert Shipe, both of Spring Gap.

Humbird School Sets Musical For Tonight

Cumberland Junior Symphony Orchestra directed by Martin E. Weisman will be featured in a musical program at the John Humbird School today at 8 p. m.

The orchestra is composed of instrumental students from county schools and will present a program of ensemble and solo numbers.

Pupils of Miss Sara Wright's Sixth Grade will present a dance interpretation including "Minuet" by Handel. An original interpretative dance-story "The Sad Little Snowflake" will be given by pupils of Miss Frances Crist's Fourth and Fifth Grades. Thirty-seven students will participate in this dance-story with a background of George Gershwin's "Rhapsody In Blue."

Members of the John Humbird School faculty are preparing a souvenir program. The musical is open to the public and funds realized will be used for general school purposes.

Airline Sets Traffic Record

Allegheny Airlines, formerly All American Airways, carried 12,547 passengers last month to set a new company record for February. Passenger traffic exceeded February 1952 (a 29 day month) by over 3,000 passengers and estimated revenues were $115,809 as compared with $79,889 for the same month last year.

The new record was reached with approximately 9,000 less scheduled miles than were operated February, 1952.

Normally February is the lightest traffic month of the first quarter off-peak season, a period from which traffic becomes increasingly heavier to a maximum in August.

In view of the February traffic record and the fact that Allegheny Airlines earned a small profit during the first six months of the current fiscal year (July through December 1952) officials of the company anticipate a good year.

9,505 Join B&O Annuity Plan

Howard E. Simpson, executive vice president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, announced yesterday that 9,505 employes of the company have already become members of the new Baltimore and Ohio Annuity Plan.

This is considered a remarkable showing in view of the fact that the plan became effective only Tuesday, and that the company has estimated that of its total personnel, only about 19,000 employes are now eligible for membership.

B & O employes along the 6,000-mile line of the railroad are attending meetings this week in order to secure full information concerning the new plan. These meetings are being conducted by supervisors who attended an all-day meeting in Baltimore on February 20 for briefing on the plan's essentials.

The plan offers to employes, who on March 1 had made more than $300 a month for the preceding twelve consecutive months, an opportunity to supplement the pensions they will receive under the U. S. Railroad Retirement Act. Other employes who reach that earnings status in the future will also be eligible for membership in the plan.

Over 800 employes of the Cumberland Division have enrolled in the new plan according to Chester T. Williams, division superintendent.

Luke Pulp Mill Wins Honors In Safety Contest

The Luke mill of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company has won honorable mention in Group A (large mills) in the 1952 National Safety Council Pulp and Paper Section Safety Contest, according to John J. Long, director of safety and plant protection.

The Luke mill will receive a certificate of achievement for reducing injuries. It was ninth in a field of 57 mills. The accident rate at the Luke mill was 2.39 while the frequency in Group A was 9.03.

Long said the accident frequency rate has been reduced 70 per cent in six years and continues to drop. In 1947, the accident frequency was 18.4 or 18 disabling injuries per million manhours worked. The first quarter of 1953's fiscal year shows accident frequency of 2.7 compared to 5.5 of the same period in 1952.

The accident cost (based on medical, legal, hospital and compensation expenses) was $1 per $100 of the payroll six years ago. At present, it is 18 cents per $100 of payroll.

For its 1951 record, the Luke mill received an award of merit from the National Safety Council.

Four factors characterize the Luke mill accident reduction and general safety, fire and plant protection efforts:

Responsibility for accident and fire prevention is that of superintendents, departmental foremen, and line supervisors. (They are working as a team).

Emphasis on employee training in the "safe way" to do each job.

Interest and cooperation of the unions at the plant. (The CIO Paper Workers of America and Electrical Union).

Stimulation of interest in safety "outside the mill" as well as inside.

Dining Room Tries Experiment

The New Century Hotel in Romney has started a novel idea in its dining room.

Previously when patrons ordered a meal they received the customary check tab which was written by the waitress, recording the charge, the customer then paying the cashier.

These same customers viewed a different menu recently, one with the prices not listed and were startled when the waitresses handed the check and pencil to them. They were informed that a new method was in effect, one that gave the customer opportunity to use his own discretion in pricing the meal. The patron decides the value of the meal, and the cashier accepts only what the customer desires to pay.

The management reports that no one has taken unfair advantage and in many cases exceeded the original set price when settling his bill. The system which was only in the experimental stage is being used for a limited time on the noon luncheon menu.

Used elsewhere in a few dining rooms throughout the nation, this marks the first time the plan has made its appearance in this area.

FROSTBURG — Mr. and Mrs. Alex Barclay, Douglas Avenue, Lonaconing, announce the marriage of their daughter, Anna Mae, to William C. Layman, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Layman, Sr., 36 Green Street, Frostburg. The ceremony was performed February 14 at St. Mary's Rectory in Lonaconing with Father Bogan, officiating.

The matron-of-honor was Mrs. Garlitz Barclay, sister-in-law of the bride, and Leo Brady was best man. The bride was attired in a light blue faille suit with which she wore navy and white accessories and a corsage of yellow rosebuds. Following the ceremony, a reception for the immediate families was held at the home of the bride.

Mrs. Layman is a 1950 graduate of Central High School, Lonaconing, and prior to her resignation was employed by the Crystal Laundry in Cumberland. Dining Room Tries Experiment

The New Century Hotel in Romney has started a novel idea in its dining room.

Previously when patrons ordered a meal they received the customary check tab which was written by the waitress, recording the charge, the customer then paying the cashier.

These same customers viewed a different menu recently, one with the prices not listed and were startled when the waitresses handed the check and pencil to them. They were informed that a new method was in effect, one that gave the customer opportunity to use his own discretion in pricing the meal. The patron decides the value of the meal, and the cashier accepts only what the customer desires to pay.

The management reports that no one has taken unfair advantage and in many cases exceeded the original set price when settling his bill. The system which was only in the experimental stage is being used for a limited time on the noon luncheon menu.

Used elsewhere in a few dining rooms throughout the nation, this marks the first time the plan has made its appearance in this area.

The Old Second Guesser

by John Wheeler

The Palm Beach Mirror

PALM BEACH—My missus decided she wanted to come to Palm Beach to see how the other half lives and do some shopping. There are no bargains here. I agreed, for she did not let me feel the lead rope. We caught an Eastern Air Lines plane at Columbus, Ga., and arrived about 8 o'clock in the evening. Mrs. John Perry, the widow of the well-known newspaper publisher, had asked us to visit her. She is a gracious hostess, and you can't beat the terms.

John Wheeler

The first morning I called Ken Cooper, the executive director of the Associated Press and an old friend.

"Who've you got with you?" he asked bluntly.

"My wife," I answered. "Who did you expect—Marilyn Monroe?"

"Well, it's almost a scandal for you to have her along," he suggested sardonically.

"Not at all. This is her idea."

It was about 30 years ago I came here for the first time. In spite of the dissenting report in the book by Cleveland Amory called "The Last Resorts," I don't see it has changed so much, and I have been inspecting all the facets.

The first day our hostess had a luncheon engagement. The missus suggested if I didn't want to be mistaken for Harpo Marx, I should get my hair cut. This operation took about 45 minutes and made us late, so we stopped in the coffee shop on a fishing pier. My wife turned her back as soon as she got inside the door and walked out.

"I can't stand the smell," she explained.

There was a sign which said the marine deck restaurant was further down the dock, so I suggested we try that. She didn't realize all the cooking was done in the same kitchen. It had a gay atmosphere with afternoon music, some patrons in bathing suits and some in shorts.

"Why don't you dance?" asked the waitress.

"We're married," I said. "We don't even dance in the evening let alone in daylight." That answer seemed to satisfy her.

We went to visit some friends in their beach home. When I was here a year ago, I wrote a piece saying it took me several days to get on the fringe of society, and my host was somewhat choleric about it, since he must have seen the column and be able to read. He claimed he had invited me to dinner, so my observation was inappropriate. I explained what I meant was that I was on the ragged edge only until he put the accolade of approval on me, and then I was in the heart of it.

There are some changes. Of course, Bradley's is gone. This ostentatious gambling casino and landmark was a shopping center for suckers. The building has been torn down, and nothing has come along to take its place. That is an advantage to the community.

The winter residents don't seem to be as plush and stuffy as they used to be. There is still a good deal of entertaining and a lot of genuine fun. Unfortunately, the flu epidemic has swept through here and laid low the rich and poor alike. I hope the Chamber of Commerce doesn't see this column.

In closing, I want to recall an anecdote. The Artists and Writers Club, of which I am a member in good standing, having paid my dues, used to come down here every winter. One of the most important hostesses invited us for cocktails and in our cast of characters was a comic artist. The lady had a couple of baboons in her back yard. After a few drinks, the strip man disappeared and was found in the cage. Said one of our members,

"How do you tell which is Billy and which are the monkeys?"

We finally let out the right one.

Gas Company Will Replace More Lines

The Street Department will cooperate with the C. and A. Gas Company in a pipe replacement program here this spring.

She has asked that the work be delayed until about the middle of this month, since blacktop will not be available for resurfacing the areas until that time.

Modern Signs Slated At Constitution Park

Plans for securing a modern sign system at Constitution Park are progressing, Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, street commissioner, said yesterday.

To be installed are metal signs which include directional maps of the park, signs listing simplified rules for use of the park and uniform traffic signs.

Orders will be placed after bids are secured from several sign firms, she added.

Hoover, Truman and Eisenhower are the only U. S. Presidents who were born west of the Mississippi River.

Finger Pick-Up Bites, Sharp And Zesty

When you pass Apple Cheesettes to guests, be sure to have plenty more in reserve. You'll need them . . . these are piquant morsels that disappear fast once guests have tasted them. You bite through tender cheese pastry right into a juicy apple center flavored with orange rind and nuts! Served warm, served cold . . . people reach for them eagerly . . . come back for another and yet another.

It's canned apple slices that make Cheesettes possible. For canned apple slices are just right in size, in firmness, in juciness for the little pastries; and they have the tangy "cooking apple" flavor that complements the snappy zest of the pastry.

You might set out a tray of Apple Cheesettes, together with glasses of chilled apple juice, for an evening of bridge or TV. They're inviting, too, served with refreshing hot tea in mid-afternoon. And the teen-ager of the family will certainly want to have them on hand in generous quantity for her friends.

Apple Cheesettes are fun to make. The recipe gives directions for the pastry, but if you prefer to use a pastry mix and add the cheese, go ahead. It will work out fine. The rest is simple, too . . . canned apple slices are available in any grocery store, all ready to use without any bother of peeling, coring or slicing.

Apple Cheesettes

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon baking powder
⅔ cup shortening
⅔ cup grated American cheddar cheese
3-4 tablespoons ice water
2½ cups (1 can) sliced apples
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
3 dozen pecans or walnuts
Brown sugar

Sift together flour, salt and baking powder; cut in shortening with 2 knives or pastry blender. Add cheese; mix well. Add enough water to hold ingredients together. Chill. Drain liquid from canned apples; add rind; mix well. Roll out pastry to ⅛" thickness; cut with 3" round cutter. Place apple slice on one-half of circle of pastry; add walnut or pecan, and sprinkle lightly with sugar. Moisten edges of pastry; fold over; press edges together. Flute with pastry wheel. Pierce with fork or make gash in center of each. Place on baking sheet; bake in hot oven, 425° F., 10-15 minutes. Yields 3 dozen.

Rolled Stuffed Flank Steak

2 tablespoons shortening; ⅓ cup finely chopped celery; 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion; 1-quart ½" bread cubes; ½ teaspoon salt; ⅛ teaspoon pepper; ¼ teaspoon sage or marjoram; 1 egg, beaten; ¼ cup bouillon or milk; 1½ pounds flank or round steak, (cut about ⅜" thick); 1 teaspoon salt; ⅛ teaspoon pepper; ¼ cup drippings; 1 cup water.

Melt shortening in a skillet; add celery and onion and saute' until tender. Pour over bread cubes, adding salt, pepper and sage. Add beaten egg and bouillon and mix well. Score steak and season with salt and pepper. Spread stuffing over steak, then roll up as a jelly roll. Tie heavy cord around steak to hold roll together. Brown slowly in hot drippings in a deep skillet or Dutch oven, turning so that all sides brown evenly. Add water, cover and simmer for one and one-half hours, or until tender. Remove cord before serving. Make gravy with pan drippings. Yield: 6 servings.

Lamb Beast With Pineapple-Mint Stuffing

1 (3 pound) boned lamb or veal breast; 1 ½ teaspoons salt; ¼ teaspoon pepper. 2 tablespoons shortening; 3 tablespoons finely chopped onion; 1 quart soft bread crumbs; ¼ teaspoon salt; Dash of pepper; 1 (No. 2) can crushed pineapple, drained; 1 teaspoon chopped mint.

Cut a pocket from end of boned lamb breast. Season breast with salt and pepper, inside and out. Melt shortening in a skillet; add onion and saute' until tender. Pour over soft bread crumbs, salt, pepper, pineapple and mint. Put stuffing inside breast pocket. Skewer edges of pocket together and lace with heavy cord. Place on rack, fat side up, in an uncovered roasting pan. Roast in slow oven (325°F.) for two hours, or until tender. Remove cord before serving. Make gravy with pan drippings.

Yield: 8 servings.

Pineapple Stuffed Ham Slice

2 tablespoons shortening
3 tablespoons chopped onions
1 quart soft bread cubes
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
1 (1 pound) can crushed pineapple, drained
2 center slices ham, ¾" thick, (averages 3 pounds)
½ cup brown sugar
½ cup dry bread crumbs
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
¼ cup water
1 tablespoon dry mustard
1 tablespoon vinegar

Melt shortening in a skillet, add onions and saute' until tender. Combine with soft bread cubes salt, pepper and pineapple. Place 1 slice ham in a shallow roasting pan. Spread pineapple stuffing over ham slice; cover with second ham slice. Combine brown sugar, dry bread crumbs, butter, water, mustard and vinegar. Spread this mixture over top ham slice. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) for one hour, Baste occasionally with pineapple juice drained from can of crushed pineapple during baking period.

Yield: 6-8 servings.

Pancakes For Lent

PANCAKE LUNCH . . . With cottage cheese and peaches.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Serving pancakes on Shrove Tuesday (February 17 this year), the day before Lent, is an ancient and delightful custom that many families still like to observe. Carry on the tradition and see which member of your family can flip a pancake with most agility!

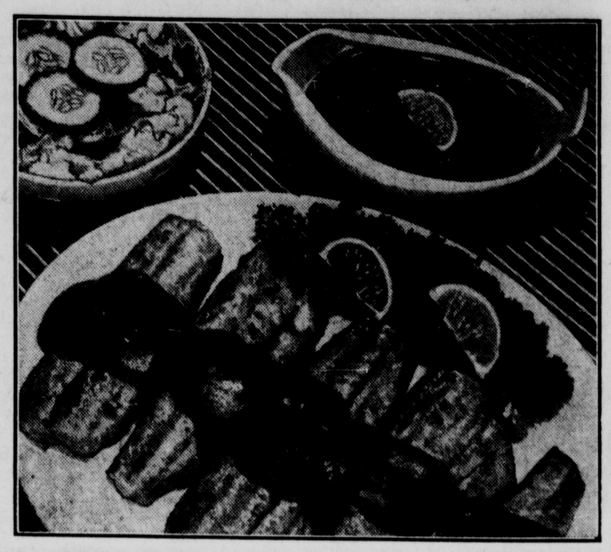

During Lent, pancakes will make good and filling luncheon and supper dishes. For instance, have a first course of a thick vegetable soup, then bring on ready-mix pancakes sandwiched with cream-style cottage-cheese, top them with a hot peach sauce made from either canned or frozen peach slices.

Another pancake specialty, good for the entire Lenten season, is Easy Pancake Appetizers. This consists of a nicely seasoned hot salmon mixture, rolled inside tiny pancakes, and served piping hot to pique the apetite. Here's the recipe.

Easy Pancake Appetizers Ingredients: For the filling—1 cup flaked salmon (1 small can), ¼ cup mayonnaise, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼teaspoon tabasco sauce. For the pancakes —¾ cup milk, 1 egg, ½ cup pancake ready-mix.

Method: For the filling — Mix salmon, mayonnaise, lemon juice, salt and tabasco. For the pancakes —put milk, egg and pancake ready-mix in a mixing bowl; beat with rotary beater until batter is smooth. Pour 1 tablespoon batter for each pancake onto a hot lightly greased griddle. Bake to a golden brown, turning only once. Put a spoonful of filling on edge of each pancake, then roll up. Brush with melted butter or margarine. Bake in a shallow pan in a very hot (450F) oven 5 or 10 minutes or until brown and crisp. Serve hot. Makes 24.

Feast On Fish—Tomato Sauce

Fish . . . In Tomato Sauce

The French had the word for it about fish: "It's the sauce that makes the fish." On fish sauce to sing about — tomato soup pointed up with lemon juice and mustard.

What could be easier than making this simple blend! And you'll say, "What could be better," once you've tasted! Pour sauce over a platter of golden broiled fish. Sit back and prepare for a fish feast.

Fish glorified with sauce comes into its own rightful place at Lent. A good time to remind yourself of all the advantages of these gifts from ocean and lake. Fish can be simply prepared to taste like the fanciest fixings. And usually your market carries a kind or two at a bargain price. So plan a fish platter for dinner tonight. The Royal Red Tomato Sauce gives a deluxe touch.

Broiled Fish in Royal Red Sauce

1½ pounds flounder fillets or other white fish; Salt and pepper; 1 can (1¼ cups) condensed tomato soup; 2 tablespoons lemon juice; 2 teaspoons prepared mustard.

Brush fillets with melted butter; sprinkle with salt, pepper, and a little crushed marjoram if desired. Broil about 15 minutes or until done and golden brown; thick fillets may need to be turned and broiled on other side. Serve on hot platter with sauce made this way: Blend together soup, lemon juice, and mustard; heat. Pour over fish.

You pick a winner in the dessert line-up when you pick bakers' sponge cake shells off your grocer's shelves. Take them home, fill them with scoops of peppermint stick ice cream and drizzle dark, rich chocolate sauce over the tops of each serving.

GOOD LUCK — FINE TABLE MARGARINE

Nice Big Steak For Dinner

IT'S the American symbol of celebration, a nice big steak for dinner. And these are good times to celebrate because steak is selling at lower prices, thanks to the fact that there are more cattle in the feeding lots of the Middle West than ever before in history.

A beautiful Porterhouse like the one pictured above needs no description. It's as good as food can be, and it's everyone's favorite. It's broiled, just about the easiest way to cook, and even its accompaniments are simple to make. We chose baked potatoes. You might prefer French Fries. We chose mushrooms to serve with our steak. You might like French Fried Onion Rings better. And our favorite is a mixed green salad but any vegetable is just as good.

Better brush up on broiling while steaks are such good buys in the market. The instructions included have been developed by experts for best results.

How to Broil

The length of time required to broil a steak or a chop, depends on a lot of things, the thickness, preference for rare, medium or well done, and the fact that there are so many different makes and models of ranges in use in American kitchens.

Broiling In a Range

1. Set regulator at 550°F. or "broil."
2. Put meat on broiler rack and place under broiling unit so that top surface of meat is about 2 inches from heat (greater distance for very thick chops or steaks).
3. Broil with door closed if using a gas range; leave door slightly ajar if broiling by electricity.
4. Broil until meat is well browned, season with salt and pepper.
5. Turn and brown other side. Only one turning is necessary.
6. Serve broiled meat immediately on hot platter "to save the sizzle."

Spinach Comes From Persia

Spinach certainly gets around! Food authorities tell us that this ancient green vegetable came originally from Persia, and that certain medicinal properties were attributed to it. Maybe some of our children heard that story, thus accounting for their almost universial dislike of the vegetable.

Then Popeye came along and the comics and movies tried to do a job on popularizing this leafy green among the younger set. It's probably unlikely that anyone ever made a survey on the results of the hearty sailor's success. But it is very likely that the only way spinach will find its way to a child's mouth (and that of many adults, too) is through tasty recipes that mothers can concoct to disguise it.

Too bad, too; for spinach is so very good without dressing up!

But should you wish to try your hand at something different in the spinach department, here are three recipes that are Dulany Kitchen-tested.

Wilted Spinach

1 package frozen spinach
3 or 4 strips bacon
¼ cup diced onion
3 tablespoons vinegar
1 teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon salt

Defrost and drain spinach (if whole leaf spinach is used, chop). Fry bacon crisp; remove and crumble over spinach. Add onion. Pour off part of bacon fat if necessary, leaving about 3 or 4 tablespoons in the skillet. To the hot fat add vinegar, sugar and salt. Bring to boil and pour boiling hot over the spinach. Serve at once. Serves 3 or 4.

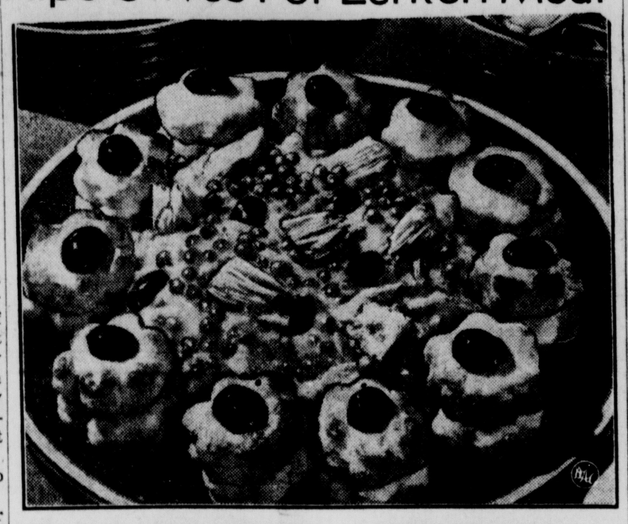

Spinach With Horse-radish

Cook spinach according to directions on package, drain. Add 3 tablespoons butter or margarine and ¼ cup cream, 2 tablespoons prepared horse-radish, salt, pepper. Reheat. Top with slices of hard-cooked egg. Serves 4-5.

Spanish Spinach

Defrost 1 package Dulany Spinach. In a skillet put 2 tablespoons olive oil, 1 mashed garlic clove, ½ teaspoon sugar, ⅛ teaspoon black pepper, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg. Add the spinach. Cover and bring to quick boil. Then cook over low flame for 8 minutes. Serves 4-5.

Ripe Olives For Lenten Meal

AN accent of ripe olives adds drama to a delicious main-dish seafood combination to bring new interest to Lenten dinners. Not only is the Tuna-Olive Lenten Dinner good to eat and easy to prepare from ready-to-use quality canned foods, but it's easy on your budget, too.

Five canned foods provide the basis for one of the best-tasting and prettiest one-dish meals that have been originated in many a day. The ingredient list includes canned peas, tuna, ripe olives, cream of celery soup and evaporated milk. And that's all, except for the biscuits which are a cinch to make with prepared biscuit mix.

When it comes to variety, convenience, flavor, nutrition, economy—almost any advantage you can name—the foods which are ready to serve and easy to store in protective tin cans rank high in favor. And in Tuna-Olive Lenten Dinner they merit special praise.

Tuna-Olive Lenten Dinner

½ cup evaporated milk
½ cup water
1½ cups biscuit mix
2 teaspoons evaporated milk
1 can cream of celery soup
½ cup evaporated milk
1 7-ounce can tuna, flaked
⅝ cup sliced pitted ripe olives
1 1-pound can peas, drained

Combine ½ cup of evaporated milk and water; stir into biscuit mix with a fork. Turn out on a lightly floured board; kneed lightly. Roll ½ inch thick. Cut into 12 biscuits with a 2-inch floured cutter; place on greased baking sheet. Brush tops of biscuits with 2 teaspoons of evaporated milk. Bake in a hot oven (425°F.) 10 minutes, or until brown. While biscuits are baking, combine remaining ingredients in saucepan; heat to serving temperature. Place biscuits in a ring on a warm platter; if desired, place additional ripe olive slices in center of each biscuit. Spoon tuna mixture in center. YIELD: 4 servings.

Hot Lemonade Timely Health Tip

The first thing to do for a "common cold", modern health advisers say, is "force fluids". That's exactly what grandmother did when she served hot lemonade without knowing the sound basis for her beliefs. In addition, vitamin C—found abundantly in citrus fruits and citrus juices—is the one which builds up bodily resistance to infection.

Modern science tells us that vitamin C cannot be stored in the body, but must be replenished daily. Here is where the homemaker plays an important roll in prevention. At the first symptom of a cold—a sniffle or a sneeze—hot lemonade is the first thought. Tastes good, too, so your patient won't complain. When you serve it you are helping in two ways—by forcing fluids and in replenishing that important Vitamin C.

Latest suggestion for increasing the amount of nutrients in lemonade is to grate a little of the lemon peel right into the glass. This way, you give an even larger quantity of healthful vitamin C and include other benefits contained in the peel.

In addition to lemons, Vitamin C is found in all citrus so that eating more of these protective fruits—oranges and grapefruit too—is a good idea all year round, especially at a time when our families need additional help in building up resistance to the "common cold."

Mother nature really takes care of her own, because during the winter months when colds are prevalent, she supplies us with abundant citrus crops. California-Arizona winter citrus reaches it's peak marketing season at this time—making it a best buy both health-wise and money-wise.

Eggs And Peas Au Gratin

4 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
1½ cups cooked peas
2 tablespoons shortening
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons minced onion
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
½ teaspoon celery salt
2 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
1 cup grated cheese
1½ cups dry bread crumbs

Prepare eggs and peas. Melt shortening in a saucepan. Blend in salt, pepper, onion, parsley, pimiento, celery salt and flour. Add milk and cook until thick, stirring constantly. Add grated cheese and stir until it melts into white sauce; add peas. Alternate layers of dry bread crumbs, cheese sauce and sliced eggs in a greased 1½ quart casserole, using dry bread crumbs on both top and bottom layers. Bake in a moderate oven (375° F.) for twenty minutes.

Yield: 8 servings.

The whole family will exclaim over a Fudge Banana Cream Cake which you can put together with little effort. To make it, place sweetened whipped cream and sliced bananas between layers of baker's plain cake. Bring a bowl of hot fudge sauce to the table and let each member of the family complete his own dessert.

THE FOOD THAT PEPS UP MEALS

Baked Whitefish With Cucumber Stuffing

3 cups soft ½" bread cubes
¼ cup melted shortening
¾ cup chopped cucumber
¼ cup chopped onion
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 tablespoons water
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 (3 pound) boned whitefish, cleaned
1 tablespoon melted shortening

Combine bread cubes, shortening, cucumber, onion, lemon juice, water, salt and pepper. Place stuffing in cavity of cleaned whitefish lightly. Leave fish unskewered. Place in a greased baking pan or on an oil plank. Carefully brush melted shortening over whitefish. Bake in a moderate oven (400° F.) for forty minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Baste occasionally with melted fat during baking. Garnish platter with lemon wedges set on cucumber slices.

Yield: 6 servings.

Brow'n Serve rolls are the pantry shelf answer to jiffy hot breads for any meal of the day. To make Orange Wedge rolls, open a package of Brown'n Serve dinner rolls. Brush the tops with melted butter and then cut a slit in the top of each one. Mix together two teaspoons each of sugar and orange juice and one-eighth teaspoon cinnamon and spoon one-half teaspoon of this mixture into each cut. Insert an orange section on top of the sugar mixture. Place rolls in a greased shallow pan and bake in a moderate oven (400°F.) for twelve minutes. Serve immediately. Makes six Orange Wedge Rolls.

MRS. FILBERT'S MARGARINE

Nice Big Steak For Dinner

IT'S the American symbol of celebration, a nice big steak for dinner. And these are good times to celebrate because steak is selling at lower prices, thanks to the fact that there are more cattle in the feeding lots of the Middle West than ever before in history.

A beautiful Porterhouse like the one pictured above needs no description. It's as good as food can be, and it's everyone's favorite. It's broiled, just about the easiest way to cook, and even its accompaniments are simple to make. We chose baked potatoes. You might prefer French Fries. We chose mushrooms to serve with our steak. You might like French Fried Onion Rings better. And our favorite is a mixed green salad but any vegetable is just as good.

Better brush up on broiling while steaks are such good buys in the market. The instructions included have been developed by experts for best results.

How to Broil

The length of time required to broil a steak or a chop, depends on a lot of things, the thickness, preference for rare, medium or well done, and the fact that there are so many different makes and models of ranges in use in American kitchens.

Broiling In a Range

1. Set regulator at 550°F. or "broil."
2. Put meat on broiler rack and place under broiling unit so that top surface of meat is about 2 inches from heat (greater distance for very thick chops or steaks).
3. Broil with door closed if using a gas range; leave door slightly ajar if broiling by electricity.
4. Broil until meat is well browned, season with salt and pepper.
5. Turn and brown other side. Only one turning is necessary.
6. Serve broiled meat immediately on hot platter "to save the sizzle."

Spinach Comes From Persia

Spinach certainly gets around! Food authorities tell us that this ancient green vegetable came originally from Persia, and that certain medicinal properties were attributed to it. Maybe some of our children heard that story, thus accounting for their almost universal dislike of the vegetable.

Then Popeye came along and the comics and movies tried to do a job on popularizing this leafy green among the younger set. It's probably unlikely that anyone ever made a survey on the results of the hearty sailor's success. But it is very likely that the only way spinach will find its way to a child's mouth (and that of many adults, too) is through tasty recipes that mothers can concoct to disguise it.

Too bad, too; for spinach is so very good without dressing up!

But should you wish to try your hand at something different in the spinach department, here are three recipes that are Dulany Kitchen-tested.

¼ cup diced onion
3 tablespoons vinegar
1 teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon salt

Defrost and drain spinach (if whole leaf spinach is used, chop). Fry bacon crisp; remove and crumble over spinach. Add onion. Pour off part of bacon fat if necessary, leaving about 3 or 4 tablespoons in the skillet. To the hot fat add vinegar, sugar and salt. Bring to boil and pour boiling hot over the spinach. Serve at once. Serves 3 or 4.

Spinach With Horse-radish

Cook spinach according to directions on package, drain. Add 3 tablespoons butter or margarine and ¼ cup cream, 2 tablespoons prepared horse-radish, salt, pepper. Reheat. Top with slices of hard-cooked egg. Serves 4-5.

Ham and Eggs Hawaiian

Once you've tried this Hawaiian combination of ham, eggs, banana and pineapple, it's likely to become one of your favorites, not only for a late breakfast or brunch, but for supper or "after the theater" refreshment too.

For each serving:

1 firm banana (yellow with green tips) peeled; 1 pineapple slice, drained; 1 slice of ham; 1 or 2 eggs; Butter or margarine for frying.

Pan-fry the bananas and pineapple in butter or margarine until golden brown. Transfer fruit to a heated platter and set aside in a warmer or oven to keep warm. Add more butter to pan and fry the eggs. Meanwhile, in another skillet, fry the ham. To serve on individual warm plates, put an egg (or eggs) on one side, then arrange on the other side the banana and the pineapple on top of the ham.

If desired, you may make a heavy syrup by cooking together brown sugar, butter or margarine, and pineapple syrup drained from the pineapple slices. Pour 1 tablespoon of this syrup over each serving of bananas, pineapple and ham.

To complete the menu for a late breakfast, just add hot buttered toast and plenty of steaming coffee. If it's to be supper, add a green salad, toasted English muffins and tea or coffee.

"Just Fishin?" Here's a Catch

Plank your catch of baked stuffed whitefish. Cucumber stuffing and fish naturally team up together. Lemon wedges on cucumber slices add the special touch.

You wouldn't fish for a compliment, but your catch will be excellent either in or out of the Lenten season if you serve stuffed baked fish. When your family or guests take their first "bite" of stuffing—it's cucumber stuffing—you will pull in your quota of praise.

The cucumber stuffing is ideally suited to contrast the flavor of fish. And, too, it helps extend each serving, if you want to indulge in one of the more costly fish varieties.

In place of whitefish, you may select a three to four pound fish from such choices as salmon, mackerel, carp, lake trout, or swordfish. All of these fish are fairly rich in the amount of fat they contain and are best for baking as they do not dry out in the oven.

If your cupboard does not boast a plank, place the stuffed fish in a glass or ceramic baking dish for oven-to-table service.

Baked Whitefish With Cucumber Stuffing

3 cups soft ½" bread cubes
¼ cup melted shortening
¾ cup chopped cucumber
¼ cup chopped onion
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 tablespoons water
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 (3 pound) boned whitefish, cleaned
1 tablespoon melted shortening

Combine bread cubes, shortening, cucumber, onion, lemon juice, water, salt and pepper. Lightly stuff cavity of cleaned whitefish. Leave fish unskewered. Place in a greased baking pan or on an oiled plank. Carefully brush melted shortening over whitefish. Bake in a moderate oven (400° F.) for 40 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Baste occasionally with melted fat during baking. Garnish platter with lemon wedges set on cucumber slices.

Yield: 6 servings.

Roast Stuffed Chicken For Two

2½ pound frying chicken
⅛ cup shortening
¼ cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped celery
1 quart soft bread cubes
½ teaspoon salt
1-16 teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon poultry seasoning
⅓ cup chicken bouillon or water

Buy chicken split down back only. Wash and pat chicken dry with towel. Melt shortening in a skillet; add onion and celery and saute' in hot fat for fifteen minutes. Pour this mixture over soft bread cubes, salt, pepper and poultry seasoning. Add chicken bouillon and mix thoroughly. Spread chicken apart and fill cavities with the bread stuffing. Fasten chicken halves together with skewers or toothpicks. Pull neck skin over back and secure with skewers. Lace twine around skewers from neck down center back to tail and tie. Tie legs together tightly. Grease skin with fat. Place chicken on rack in a baking pan and roast uncovered in a moderate oven (350° F.) for one and one-half hours. Make gravy with drippings.

Yield: 2 servings Roast Stuffed Chicken.

A pancakes-and-sausage breakfast provides plenty of "get up and go" for the family. And try heated canned apple sauce as the topping for the pancakes. Tastes wonderful—goes well with the sausages. You know the affinity of apples and pork for each other!

Broil A Hamburger Loaf For Guests

Meat loaf usually comes to the table in a somewhat traditional shape. Here's one that's broiled, imaginatively seasoned and served about as thick as the hamburger we slip into buns.

The result is a hamburger loaf you can serve with justifiable pride to guests, especially when it's accompanied with grilled tomato slices and salty french fries. To complete the party menu with a beverage that is both smart and economical, serve beer. And, if you have them, serve the beer in its own special glass — either tall, tapering pilseners or hollow-stemmed goblets.

Layered Hamburger Loaf

(Makes 6 servings)

1-½ pounds hamburger; 1-½ teaspoons salt; ⅛ teaspoon pepper; ⅛ pound sliced cheddar cheese; 2 tablespoons chopped onions; 2 tablespoons catchup; ¼ teaspoon oregano; Salt; Pepper.

Season hamburger with salt and pepper. Divide into two portions, flattening each rectangular piece about inch thick. Place cheese slices on one portion and cover with onions, catchup, oregano and a sprinkling of salt and pepper. Top with second portion of hamburger and press edges of beef together with tines of fork. With two wide spatulas, lift onto broiler pan and broil about 5 minutes on each side. After turning, place bacon strips diagonally across loaf and broil on second side. If desired, garnish serving platter with grilled tomato slices and sprigs of fresh parsley.

Spaghetti Sauce, Short And Simple

Most spaghetti sauce recipes seem to call for an almost endless amount of ingredients. Maybe they're better that way, but here's one that's really something special with just a few ingredients plus everyday seasonings.

It's a wonderful recipe for entertaining a large crowd. Serve it buffet style with a big pot of freshly cooked spaghetti, some heated French bread, a green salad and plenty of smooth, mellow beer.

For convenience, keep extra bottles or cans of beer on the buffet table in a large bowl of cracked ice. Dessert might be a basket of fresh fruit and an assortment of dessert cheeses.

Spaghetti Sauce

(makes 6 servings)

1 cup chopped onions (about 2 medium onions)
3 tablespoons salad or olive oil
2 peeled cloves garlic, crushed
1 6-ounce can tomato sauce
1 pound finely ground hamburger
1 No. 2½ can tomatoes
1 can condensed tomato soup
1½ teaspoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1½ teaspoons chili powder

Brown onions in salad oil or olive oil. Add garlic, tomato paste and hamburger. (This beef is not browned before adding the sauce in this recipe.) Add remaining ingredients. Cover and simmer over low heat 1½ hours. Serve immediately or store in refrigerator and reheat the next day.

Here is a breakfast quickie that will make a hit with family. Toast a generous number of slices of bakery bread and spread with a mixture of butter, sugar and cinnamon or butter and brown sugar. At the last minute, pop the toast under the broiler and presto!—a toast treat.

Ham and Eggs Hawaiian

Once you've tried this Hawaiian combination of ham, eggs, banana and pineapple, it's likely to become one of your favorites, not only for a late breakfast or brunch, but for supper or "after the theater" refreshment too.

For each serving:

1 firm banana (yellow with green tips) peeled; 1 pineapple slice, drained; 1 slice of ham; 1 or 2 eggs; Butter or margarine for frying.

Pan-fry the bananas and pineapple in butter or margarine until golden brown. Transfer fruit to a heated platter and set aside in a warmer or oven to keep warm. Add more butter to pan and fry the eggs. Meanwhile, in another skillet, fry the ham. To serve on individual warm plates, put an egg (or eggs) on one side, then arrange on the other side the banana and the pineapple on top of the ham.

If desired, you may make a heavy syrup by cooking together brown sugar, butter or margarine, and pineapple syrup drained from the pineapple slices. Pour 1 tablespoon of this syrup over each serving of bananas, pineapple and ham.

To complete the menu for a late breakfast, just add hot buttered toast and plenty of steaming coffee. If it's to be supper, add a green salad, toasted English muffins and tea or coffee.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, March 5 (INS)—If you looked all over Hollywood for an actress to play the Indian princess, Pocahontas, you couldn't find one more perfect than Linda Darnell. That's why Lewis Rachmil, who is producing the beautiful love story for Columbia, is trying to get Linda to play the maiden who is so important to America.

Just to refresh your memory with a little history lesson, Pocahontas, daughter of Chief Powhatan, at the age of 14, saved the life of Captain John Smith by pretending to be in love with him. Later she married John Rolfe and was converted to Christianity. She went with him to visit his native England and was made much of by London society leaders. She died while returning to Virginia and was taken ashore and buried in England.

I usually catch up with George Montgomery at some party or other and talk to him for about five minutes. But I did pin him down long enough to know he's going to produce an independent three-D picture in technicolor, called "Red Blizzard."

George tells me this is a magazine story and he has signed Horace McCoy to do the scripting and to direct. Being a western, it will be produced in George's native Montana this summer.

This is his third three-D movie. He's already made "Fort Ti" at Columbia and "Battle of Rogue River."

I don't know of any picture made last year that is better than "The Quiet Man," which has such charm as well as the distinction of having been filmed in Ireland.

It brought John Ford an Academy nomination, and now he is making definite plans to shoot another picture in the home of his ancestors, Ireland that is. This one will be broken up into four sequences, two of which will be directed by John and the other two by Brian Desmond Hurst.

Mary Ford left a few days ago to join John in London where he is now editing "Mogambo," which he made in Africa.

Maurice Schwartz, the most famous of all Yiddish theatre actors, came to Hollywood for a role in "Salome." But the eminent gentleman cast an eminent eye around and has decided that Los Angles is ripe for still another little theatre.

Mr. Schwartz is putting $20,000 of his own money in the venture and has already taken over the old Century Theatre on La Cienega which he has renamed the Civic Theatre.

His first, "Take Now Thy Son," opens next Wednesday and while it has a religious flavor there is much comedy in the play about a Jewish family in Beverly Hills.

Don't be surprised if Gail Russell and Guy Madison reconcile. They've parted before.

Reports, unverified, are that Jennifer Jones was in and out of New York like a flash to see a doctor.

Sportswriter Note: Herman Hickman, 300-pound former football coach at Yale and now a TV sports announcer, has been tested to play himself in "All-American."

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Seek Pact Talks

The Building and Construction Trades Council has sent notices to general contractors of this area, asking that negotiations on a new contract begin in April.

The contractors were asked to set the date of the opening meeting, which will be held at the Algonquin Hotel.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

"Speech is bent when ended", runs one maxim. Another advises, "Let thy speech be short, comprehending much in few words." And as Thomas Carlyle phrased it, "Under all speech that is good for anything there is a silence that is better."

Those who have mastered the art of conversation break their speech with large measures of silence. It gives the other fellow a flattering chance to contribute his ideas. It also is the pause that refreshes other's ears, thereby gaining renewed attention for what you next say.

Whenever I meet a woman who keeps up an unending stream of chit-chat I wonder how she can be so oblivious of the lack of poise that she evidences. Silence is an exquisite attribute of charm. The ability to project outward poise and inner quiet is a most compelling attraction.

Much that passes as conversation is merely an attempt to cover not only one's real thoughts but one's real personality. Have the courage to be yourself and you will find the courage to let silence creep into your conversational practices. To be enjoyable, remember good conversation always has an ebb and flow.

Silence need never be awkward, empty or static. It is only a fear of silence that gives it such character... or, of course, tongue-tieing emotions such as disdain or disinterest.

One of the great blessings that silence bestows is freedom from noise. In it there can be most enjoyable companionship — moments when one can not only hear himself think but also sense the thoughts of the other person as well. That is when you discover that silence can be most expressive, and in a most eloquent way. Silence that is shared and sympathetic has a quality as pleasurable as song.

Are you convinced that gracious moments of silence can add much to social charm? If not, consider this paean of praise for Macaulay, one of the most famous conversationalists. It was said of him, a century ago, "He has occasional flashes of silence that make his conversation perfectly delightful." Other famous conversationalists have been striving to merit the same praise ever since

My New York

by Mel Heimer

NEW YORK—Bob Hilliard was up to see me the other afternoon, making with the mild gripe, but the best I could do was to pat him on the shoulder and tell him he was dead wrong.

Bob is a big, reasonably young man with the aura of Broadway about him, who looks as if he should be drinking coffee in Lindy's. Set him down anywhere along the big drag, from 42nd Street to Columbus Circle, put a cigar in his mouth and hang a camel's hair coat over his arm, and he'd seem at home.

What sets him apart from the rest of the inmates, however, is a talent for writing the words to songs. He is one of Tin Pan Alley's top lyricists and the citizens are paying homage to him right now as the guy who fashioned the rhymes to the tunes in "Hazel Flagg," the new musical starring my doll, Helen Gallagher.

Except the citizens aren't really paying homage and therein lay Bob's gripe. Now, he seems to have no more than the average itch to be famous, but he does feel that lyric-writers have been getting the short end of the stick. In behalf of some of his colleagues that he admires—mention Larry Hart and, rightfully, he almost kneels and prays—he'd like to see them better known.

"For example," he said to me, "take "Stardust." Everybody links Hoagy Carmichael with that. 'Hoagy Carmichael's "Stardust,'" they say. Well, it's a fine melody—but did you know that a guy named Mitchell Parrish wrote the words? You did? Well—I'll bet most people don't."

Bob sat back and named more names. He pointed out that while Harold Arlen is given credit for the production of "Stormy Weather," the blues song that did so much for Ethel Waters, the words were the work of Ted Kohler. And Arlen's "Over the Rainbow," sung for the magic lanterns by a soprano named Garland (whatever became of her?) had lyrics by Yip Harburg.

The aforementioned Hart, probably the greatest of them all (And tell me what street compares with Mott Street in July?) was much less known than his tune-writer, Richard Rodgers—and, of course, the classic example may be Ira Gershwin, who did nearly all the words for his brother George's songs. Ira's words to the "Porgy and Bess" score had more than somewhat to do with that opera's success.

"About the only lyricist that people seem to know," Bob said, "is Oscar Hammerstein, now Rodgers' partner, and I believe they know him more as a writer of show books than as a word-writer for songs."

Hilliard, then, has a point—but I must tell him that this is one case where the public is right. If the public remembers "Stardust" as Hoagy Carmichael's song, the public is right . Without its haunting melody—just put the words down on paper and look at them, without thinking of the tune—you'd have nothing.

I am a man who deals in words and reveres them. The great writers — the handful of them — make the hair stand up at the nape of my neck—and I have a wall lined with books, virtually any one of which can take me out of this world and into another. I consider myself a practitioner of one of the world's most masterly arts.

On the other hand, I think you can take every wonderful word ever written, and that goes right back to the Songs of Solomon—and matched alongside of a few notes correctly juxtaposed by the right composer and sung or played by the right man, they are as nothing.

I am a writer, and whenever someone tells me that writing belongs on the same shelf as music in the hall of fame, I tell him he has rocks in his head. Writing is an art. Music is the art.

My guess is that this goes right down the scale, to the cheap, amiable little music of show business. The words are interesting, amusing, occasionally moving—but the tunes make the songs go. Nobody loved Larry Hart's lyrics more than I—but Rodgers' greatest music, "Slaughter on Tenth Avenue," has no words at all.

I write words, too, Bob — but great as I am, and that's pretty great, I'll give Rachmaninoff billing over me.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, March 5 (INS)—If you looked all over Hollywood for an actress to play the Indian princess, Pocahontas, you couldn't find one more perfect than Linda Darnell. That's why Lewis Rachmil, who is producing the beautiful love story for Columbia, is trying to get Linda to play the maiden who is so important to America.

Just to refresh your memory with a little history lesson, Pocahontas, daughter of Chief Powhatan, at the age of 14, saved the life of Captain John Smith by pretending to be in love with him. Later she married John Rolfe and was converted to Christianity. She went with him to visit his native England and was made much of by London society leaders. She died while returning to Virginia and was taken ashore and buried in England.

I usually catch up with George Montgomery at some party or other and talk to him for about five minutes. But I did pin him down long enough to know he's going to produce an independent three-D picture in technicolor, called "Red Blizzard."

George tells me this is a magazine story and he has signed Horace McCoy to do the scripting and to direct. Being a western, it will be produced in George's native Montana this summer.

This is his third three-D movie. He's already made "Fort Ti" at Columbia and "Battle of Rogue River."

I don't know of any picture made last year that is better than "The Quiet Man," which has such charm as well as the distinction of having been filmed in Ireland.

It brought John Ford an Academy nomination, and now he is making definite plans to shoot another picture in the home of his ancestors, Ireland that is. This one will be broken up into four sequences, two of which will be directed by John and the other two by Brian Desmond Hurst.

Mary Ford left a few days ago to join John in London where he is now editing "Mogambo," which he made in Africa.

Maurice Schwartz, the most famous of all Yiddish theatre actors, came to Hollywood for a role in "Salome." But the eminent gentleman cast an eminent eye around and has decided that Los Angles is ripe for still another little theatre.

Mr. Schwartz is putting $20,000 of his own money in the venture and has already taken over the old Century Theatre on La Cienega which he has renamed the Civic Theatre.

His first, "Take Now Thy Son," opens next Wednesday and while it has a religious flavor there is much comedy in the play about a Jewish family in Beverly Hills.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Don't be surprised if Gail Russell and Guy Madison reconcile. They've parted before.

Reports, unverified, are that Jennifer Jones was in and out of New York like a flash to see a doctor.

Coleen Moore Hargraves, in town for a few days, met some of he old friends at the home of Fixie Leshin. Coleen looks great and is very happy with her marriage to Homer Hargraves, Chicago business man.

Ethel Merman took her two children to a private showing of "Call Me Madame' in New York and they just had to be unanimous and say that Mom is great!

Sportswriter Note: Herman Hickman, 300-pound former football coach at Yale and now a TV sports announcer, has been tested to play himself in "All-American."

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

"Speech is bent when ended", runs one maxim. Another advises, "Let thy speech be short, comprehending much in few words." And as Thomas Carlyle phrased it, "Under all speech that is good for anything there is a silence that is better."

Those who have mastered the art of conversation break their speech with large measures of silence. It gives the other fellow a flattering chance to contribute his ideas. It also is the pause that refreshes other's ears, thereby gaining renewed attention for what you next say.

Whenever I meet a woman who keeps up an unending stream of chit-chat I wonder how she can be so oblivious of the lack of poise that she evidences. Silence is an exquisite attribute of charm. The ability to project outward poise and inner quiet is a most compelling attraction.

Much that passes as conversation is merely an attempt to cover not only one's real thoughts but one's real personality. Have the courage to be yourself and you will find the courage to let silence creep into your conversational practices. To be enjoyable, remember good conversation always has an ebb and flow.

Silence need never be awkward, empty or static. It is only a fear of silence that gives it such character... or, of course, tongue-tieing emotions such as disdain or disinterest.

One of the great blessings that silence bestows is freedom from noise. In it there can be most enjoyable companionship — moments when one can not only hear himself think but also sense the thoughts of the other person as well. That is when you discover that silence can be most expressive, and in a most eloquent way. Silence that is shared and sympathetic has a quality as pleasurable as song.

Are you convinced that gracious moments of silence can add much to social charm? If not, consider this paean of praise for Macaulay, one of the most famous conversationalists. It was said of him, a century ago, "He has occasional flashes of silence that make his conversation perfectly delightful." Other famous conversationalists have been striving to merit the same praise ever since.

Naguib Says Farouk's Ouster Kept Egypt Out Of Reds' Hands

Editor's note: William L. Ryan, AP foreign news analyst, is a Russian-speaking specialist on the news of communism. For the last month he has been applying his background knowledge to the situation in East Africa, an area where Communists are busily cultivating the seeds of chaos. This is the last of three articles telling of Communist efforts in all the vast strategic area from Kenya to Cairo.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

CAIRO, Egypt, March 5 (AP)—A vast expanse of East Africa, stirring restlessly with the growing pains of intense nationalism, is being subjected to underground Communist attack with the apparent aim of nullifying its value to the Western world as a base.

Statesmen, trained Western observers and responsible native leaders agree that the Communists seek to produce turbulence wherever possible in Egypt, the Sudan and Kenya, to harry and drive away Western influence and leave the sprawling, potentially rich area helpless for Soviet plans of the future.

Premier Gen. Mohamed Naguib declares Egypt, heartland and cultural hub of the Middle East, "would have been in the hands of the Communists today" if his Army movement had not taken over the government when it did.

"The lowest classes might have been led to destructive aims" had his tightly organized group of officers not stepped in and overthrown King Farouk, Naguib told me.

The government of young officers may have checked the Communists, and captured the imagination and the hopes of Egypt's unshod and underfed masses, but its dangerous to think the Communists are beaten.

The next few months may be critical here. The Communists may be expected to work with a fever born of desperation to discredit the Naguib regime. If it can be undermined and then overthrown in violence the organized, disciplined minority of Communists might be able to bring about turmoil and anarchy. These in turn would make this nation prostrate before forces that would dragoon it into a Middle East "peoples democracy."

Naguib received me in the officers' club in the midst of one of his endless succession of extremely busy days. He is only 52, but the terrific pace of the last six months has told on him and he looked more like 65. A kindly, softspoken man, he did not appear to be of the stuff from which dictators are made. He appeared to be the symbol and model of what the Army movement says it wants Egyptians to be: patriotic, devout, moral, courageous in war and honest and straightforward in peace.

Despite some hard words spoken in public over negotiations with the British concerning the Suez canal area and the Sudan, he is more pro-Western than any Egyptian who has held the reins of government for a long time. He is certainly pro-American.

At the lower levels of the population the devotion to Naguib appears to amount to idolatry. As the scale goes up this sentiment tones down to admiration, and finally among a sizable group of pasha beys and politicians who have been displaced it is mere lip service. Among the Communists the name of Naguib is poison.

The strength of Communists in the universities has caused expressions of alarm here. They have even infiltrated Al Azhar University, the biggest and oldest Moslem University in the world. The tenets of the Moslem religion are supposed to be particularly opposed to communism, but Al Azhar students include many from the unstable elements of Egyptian society.

There are 35,000 students in four big government universities. Of these at least 1,000 are hard-bitten Communists, 7,000 others compose a leftist fringe subject to being used as Communist tools.

At the last census the average peasant had an income of about $23 a year. He does not own his land, animals or even his miserable mud hut. He eats bread, onions and perhaps some peppers, seldom anything better. Disease rages in his villages.

The country has two million unemployed. Wages have been raised recently, but prices have gone up too.

The undernourished, miserably housed, ignorant, disease-ridden masses offer a happy hunting ground for Communists.

The Naguib regime has plans for raising agricultural and industrial production, for improving transportation and power, for more irrigation, for dividing up large estates among the peasants. But these plans are long-range and Egypt's needs are immediate.

Already, Naguib said, Communists are attacking his proposed land reform. They are telling the peasants they will be worse off than ever.

WINS AWARD—Alan Phillips, 15, Lincoln, Mass., has been named winner of the Westinghouse grand science scholarship, according to a Washington announcement. Phillips used as his winning science project "the compression of liquids and gases under gravitational and centrifugal forces," using mathematical calculations far more complex than those normally expected of high school students.

Small wars sometimes flared in ancient Egypt between those who regarded the crocodile as a menace to be killed and those who regarded it as an object of worship.

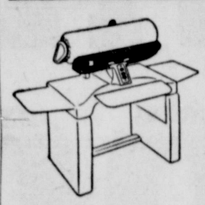

There were 4719 lynchings in the United States from 1882 to 1948, inclusive.

Eight School Quints Figure In District Tests Here Today

Hancock Plays Middletown In Opening Game

Allegany, Frederick, Bruce And Northern Play Night Twin Bill

Eight teams from high schools in Garrett, Washington, Frederick and Allegany counties gather at Fort Hill High School's gym today to play in the opening round games of the Maryland District No. 1 basketball tournament, the first event of its kind ever scheduled here.

Survivors of this tourney which ends Saturday night and four other district tournaments in the state will qualify for the Class A, B and C state championship tests March 13 and 14 at the University of Maryland, College Park. The tournament idea is an experiment and if it proves successful will be continued next year.

Ten Schools Entered

The Class "A" schools entered are Allegany High, W.M.I. League and city champions; Hagerstown High, Southern High of Oakland and Frederick High School's Cadets. The "B" entries are Hancock of Washington county, Middletown of Frederick county, Bruce High of Westernport and Northern of Accident. As You Were

Remember this Cumberland high school football star of twenty years ago?

He was one of the city's outstanding tackles in 1932 and 1933 and played with LaSalle teams coached by Pat Conway that defeated Penn Avenue twice, beat and tied Allegany, and won over St. Mary's of Pittsburgh, Johnstown Catholic, Calvert Hall of Baltimore and other schools.

He and his brother Joe played with the Explorers. They both were very good boxers. In fact, he and his brother won middleweight and lightweight titles while attending C. M. T. C. camps.

What's his name?

He is Jack Plum, LaSalle's classy tackle, who played on teams that won 11, lost six and tied one in 1932 and 1933. Jack now resides in Washington, D. C., while Joe is at Upper Darby, Pa.

West Virginia Spills Furman Cagers, 91-87

Terps Top Duke, 74-65, Shue Gets 33 Points

RALEIGH, March 5 (AP) — Third-seeded Maryland whipped Duke, 74-65, and fourth-seeded West Virginia took a 91-87 thriller from Furman today to advance to the semi-finals of the Southern Conference Championship Basketball Tournament.

In games tonight, Richmond plays Wake Forest at 7:30 with the winner meeting Maryland at 7:30 tomorrow night.

Defending Champion North Carolina State plays North Carolina at 9:30 tonight, the winner going against West Virginia at 9:30 tomorrow night.

The crowd of 12,000 at the afternoon doubleheader saw three players break the old individual tournament scoring record for a regulation distance game.

Furman's scoring twins, Frank Selvy and Nield Gordon, and Maryland's Gene Shue were the record breakers. Gordon poured in 37 points and Selvy 34 while Shue led the rout of Duke with 33.

The old regulation distance record was 31 points held by several players while the overall record was 36 set by Chet Giermak of William and Mary in a triple overtime game four years ago.

West Virginia's 91 points, 29 by Captain Jim Sottile, topped by one point the team record Duke set a year ago against West Virginia.

Old Gees Cancel Sunday Contest

Wheeling, Detroit Coming Here Later

Cumberland's Old Germans basketball team will be idle this Sunday, Manager Bob Pence announced last night.

Plans were under way to play the Charles Town American Legion quint here but with "Skippy" Hill, ace of the West Virginia squad, sidelined with an ankle injury, the locals deemed it best to call off the game because Charles Town would not be at full strength.

Pence stated that the Wheeling Blues, greatly strengthened since their first appearance here, will play the Old Germans here Sunday, March 15.

The Detroit Vagabonds, featuring Bill Spivey, two times All-America from the University of Kentucky, and the Magula Brothers, formerly of the Sharon Club of the All-American League, will appear here Sunday, March 22.

Hancock Plays Middletown In Opening Game

Allegany, Frederick, Bruce And Northern Play Night Twin Bill

Eight teams from high schools in Garrett, Washington, Frederick and Allegany counties gather at Fort Hill High School's gym today to play in the opening round games of the Maryland District No. 1 basketball tournament, the first event of its kind ever scheduled here.

Survivors of this tourney which ends Saturday night and four other district tournaments in the state will qualify for the Class A, B and C state championship tests March 13 and 14 at the University of Maryland, College Park. The tournament idea is an experiment and if it proves successful will be continued next year.

Ten Schools Entered

The Class "A" schools entered are Allegany High, W.M.I. League and city champions; Hagerstown High, Southern High of Oakland and Frederick High School's Cadets. The "B" entries are Hancock of Washington county, Middletown of Frederick county, Bruce High of Westernport and Northern of Accident. Walkersville of Frederick county and Barton High, Allegany county's Class "C" representative, automatically qualify for the finals here Saturday at 6 o'clock because they are the only entries in that classification.

In the opener of today's twin bill, Hancock (14-4) will meet Middletown (16-4) at 1:30 o'clock. Southern of Oakland tests Hagerstown High at 3 o'colck. Clifton Van Roby and Bob Pence will handle the Hancock-Middletown game while Bill Bossi and Alex Rich of Windber will do the whistle tooting in the Oakland-Hagerstown tilt.

Campers Face Frederick

Tonight's doubleheader gets under way at 7:30 with Allegany billed to meet Frederick High School. At 9 o'clock, Northern of Accident opposes Bruce of Westernport. Hahn and Van Roby will work the Allegany-Fredrick contest and Bossi and Rich will officiate in the Bruce-Northern contest.

Southern's record is 12-6, Hagerstown's 9-8, Allegany's 17-4 and Frederick's 11-10. Northern has won 14 and lost 7 and Bruce has copped 17 of 21 contests. Barton has won only two of 20 games while Walkersville's record is 6-10.

Tripleheader Saturday

A tripleheader will conclude the tournament Saturday night. The "C" finals are set for 6 p. m., the "B" at 7:30 and the "A" at 9 o'clock.

Three of the visiting teams are coached by former Cumberland high school players. Mel Henry, one-time Penn Avenue athlete and later Fort Hill grid mentor, is coach at Hagerstown High. Homer Brooks, ex-Allegany cage star, is tutor of the Frederick High aggregation. Walter Donald "Lefty" Lee, former AHS basketeer, is head man at Hancock High.

The other coaches are Carroll Horine, Middletown; Dick Travis, Oakland; Walter L. Bowers, Allegany; Lilburn Brown of Northern of Accident; Augie Eichhorn, Bruce; Paul Footen, Barton, and George Ramsburg, Walkersville.

Herbert Steiner, of Baltimore, executive secretary of the Maryland State Athletic Association, arrived yesterday and will attend today's games.

As You Were

Remember this Cumberland high school football star of twenty years ago?

He was one of the city's outstanding tackles in 1932 and 1933 and played with LaSalle teams coached by Pat Conway that defeated Penn Avenue twice, beat and tied Allegany, and won over St. Mary's of Pittsburgh, Johnstown Catholic, Calvert Hall of Baltimore and other schools.

He and his brother Joe played with the Explorers. They both were very good boxers. In fact, he and his brother won middleweight and lightweight titles while attending C. M. T. C. camps.

The fellow pictured here later appeared in Cumberland amateur boxing shows and won several bouts.

In 1942 he was LaSalle's football coach and his team won three games and lost four.

What's his name?

He is Jack Plum, LaSalle's classy tackle, who played on teams that won 11, lost six and tied one in 1932 and 1933. Jack now resides in Washington, D. C., while Joe is at Upper Darby, Pa.

In games tonight, Richmond plays Wake Forest at 7:30 with the winner meeting Maryland at 7:30 tomorrow night.

The crowd of 12,000 at the afternoon doubleheader saw three players break the old individual tournament scoring record for a regulation distance game.

Furman's scoring twins, Frank Selvy and Nield Gordon, and Maryland's Gene Shue were the record breakers. Gordon poured in 37 points and Selvy 34 while Shue led the rout of Duke with 33.

The old regulation distance record was 31 points held by several players while the overall record was 36 set by Chet Giermak of William and Mary in a triple overtime game four years ago.

West Virginia's 91 points, 29 by Captain Jim Sottile, topped by one point the team record Duke set a year ago against West Virginia.

Wheeling, Detroit Coming Here Later

Cumberland's Old Germans basketball team will be idle this Sunday, Manager Bob Pence announced last night.

Plans were under way to play the Charles Town American Legion quint here but with "Skippy" Hill, ace of the West Virginia squad, sidelined with an ankle injury, the locals deemed it best to call off the game because Charles Town would not be at full strength.

Hill scored 38 points in Charles Town's 90-78 win over the Old Germans at Charles Town, February 14.

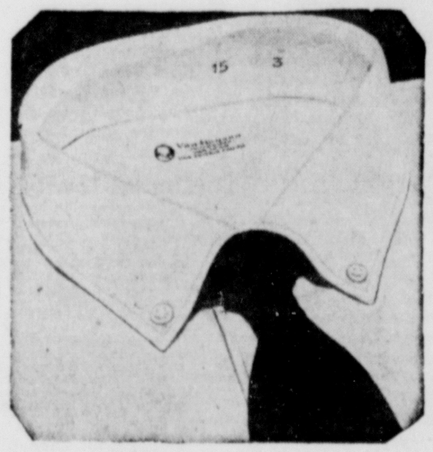

Pence stated that the Wheeling Blues, greatly strengthened since their first appearance here, will play the Old Germans here Sunday, March 15.

The Detroit Vagabonds, featuring Bill Spivey, two times All-America from the University of Kentucky, and the Magula Brothers, formerly of the Sharon Club of the All-American League, will appear here Sunday, March 22.

Joy Scouts, Television Neck And Perfumed Ink

National Smile Week, it says right here in a press release, begins Monday. Well. Well. How time flies! It seems like only yesterday that it was National Smile Week and here it's rolled around again. No speeches, no parades this year, says the National Smile Week Committee. Just Joy Scouts, going around spreading sunshine.

John Crosby

"And who are the Joy Scouts? Well a Joy Scout is anybody who smiles and helps others to smile." Everyone straight on that? Well, I'm all for National Smile Week, provided it be counterbalanced by a National Non-Smile Week, this latter for pitchmen and pitchwomen only. Just one week a year, it seems to me, those pretty young ladies who demonstrate the green-glo shampoo, the spray deodorant, the easy-spin washing machine, the men who talk with such gusto about toothpaste and cigarets and embraceable wristwatches, ought to unpin those smiles—if only to get the creases out of their faces.

Just one week a year they ought to try snarling at the toothpaste instead of regarding it with such unstinted adoration. It would restore their sense of proportion and I think we'd all feel better. Speaking of upper case Weeks which are weeks dedicated to higher purposes like smiling, you'll all be happy to learn that Wife Week slipped by unnoticed. During Wife Week, husbands and children were urged to take over the housewifely duties of cleaning, washing, cooking and homemaking, heaven forfend. You can come out from under the bed, men. It's all over.

Wife and Smile Weeks are just a couple of the big news stories that have been piling up here, unvented for lack of space. We'll try to get rid of all of them at once. In the realm of invention, a designer named Paul Laszlo has come up with a TV set suspended on a monorail. It can chase you all over your own house—the living room, bedroom, kitchen and I presume even the bathroom. Kate Smith will be right at your heels every minute, nagging you into buying her particular brand of canned orange juice. Nobody will dare use anything but Lipton's. Arthur Godfrey will be right there staring over your shoulder reproachfully like an electronic conscience.

And in the field of medicine, Dr. William Kaufman, an expert on muscoskeletal disorders, has this to say in the "Journal of The American Medical Association:" "Recently I have observed a clinical syndrome in persons who, in watching television programs, maintain strained postures of the head and neck often for prolonged periods. The manifestations of this syndrome, which for want of a better name can be called television neck, include measurable increased limitation in ranges of neck movement and pain or discomfort in the posterior nuchal region."

In laymen's language, television neck is caused by staring up at or down at the TV screen or twisting the neck to see it. The remedy: look at it head-on and raise or lower either your chair or the set that it is at an approximation of eye level. Or turn it off and go play with the children.

There have been a good many honors and distinctions of various sorts which have escaped the attention of the press. One of the most decorated ladies around is Doris Day who, among other things, received from soldiers of Korea the titled of "Miss Close Support of '52" and "Miss Heavy 30 Calibre of '52." So much for honors. Now as to contests, of which there have been a great many, the most ignored (with good reason) was WMGM's contest concerning the proposition: "If you could invite anyone you wanted to Christmas dinner, whom would you invite this year?" The winners in a neck-and-neck tie: Adlai Stevenson and Marilyn Monroe.

The only other item we have around is that a new side of that many-faceted man John J. Anthony has been uncovered. Mr. Anthony, the well-known marital counsellor, author and non-objective painter, was—when last heard from—working on the development of a new ink called Springtone Perfumed Ink. Smells like flowers. Fine for breach-of-promise cases, notes left by wives who have just absconded with the chauffeur, or, at very least, for writing Mr. Anthony to ask his advice about your wife-beating husband.

So much for honors. Now as to contests, of which there have been a great many, the most ignored (with good reason) was WMGM's contest concerning the proposition: "If you could invite anyone you wanted to Christmas dinner, whom would you invite this year?" The winners in a neck-and-neck tie: Adlai Stevenson and Marilyn Monroe.

The only other item we have around is that a new side of that many-faceted man John J. Anthony has been uncovered. Mr. Anthony, the well-known marital counsellor, author and non-objective painter, was—when last heard from—working on the development of a new ink called Springtone Perfumed Ink. Smells like flowers. Fine for breach-of-promise cases, notes left by wives who have just absconded with the chauffeur, or, at very least, for writing Mr. Anthony to ask his advice about your wife-beating husband.

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Peiping Jittery Over Possible U. N. Invasion

By F. K. WU
Central Press Correspondent

HONGKONG — Any possible American or United Nations military move against Communist China to be undertaken by the new Eisenhower administration in the near future is anticipated by the "Central People's government" in Peiping, which may have completed some preparations to cope with the situation. American press reports speculated on the possibility of bombing of the China mainland, naval blockade of the long China coast, invasion of South China by nationalist troops from Taiwan or Formosa and a UN drive to Manchuria from North Korea.

Such reports are seriously taken in Peiping. A recent editorial in the People's Daily, official newspaper of the Peiping Communist regime, said that the campaign against the United States and aid to North Korea is to be continued and strengthened in 1953 and that the Chinese Communists "are ready to pulverize the enemy in any place and manner of advance and attack. It is necessary to strengthen national defense, safeguard the rear and forestall nationalist coastal raids and all subversive activities."

Although Peiping in November last year hinted to India about willingness to resume peace talks on Korea, the Kremlin and Peiping have subsequently agreed that the Korean conflict shall continue for some time unless the UN is prepared to repatriate all Korean and Chinese prisoners of war, who are to be punished as a lesson to all ranks for the sake of discipline and morale and prevention of future surrender.

As the original Peiping readiness to have peace in Korea was later disavowed by Soviet Russia which has favored a continuation of the war, inspired press dispatches from London and Paris asserted that chairman Mao Tse-tung of the Peiping regime and his colleagues are likely to become Titos as predicted from time to time from those quarters.

Such rumors of wishful thinking are set at rest by Premier and Foreign Minister Chou En-lai who said the "Russian - Chinese friendship is unbreakable and that such tie is not only building up the vast reconstruction of the two great countries but also maintains the invincible peace of the Far East and the world."

Alexander S. Panyushkin, the newly-installed Soviet ambassador in Peiping, echoed by saying that "Russian - Chinese friendship is beneficial not only the the U.S.S.R. and China but constitutes a mighty strength hitherto unknown in the history of mankind." The ambassador stressed such strength as "the biggest obstacle to the invasion plans of the United States and other imperialistic powers."

Giving every indication of war preparations, an official Peiping statement enumerated the following projects for the current year:

1—A bigger victory in Korea through more aid to Korea and greater resistance to the United States.

2—Enforcement of a five-year industrial plan as a beginning of national reconstruction and completion of construction projects for 1953.

Radio Canton recently announced that 1953 marks the change of China from an agricultural country to a highly industrial state. The emphasis is on heavy industries.

Inauguration of heavy industries means the production of tanks, guns and other heavy weapons of war in the interpretation of Chinese observers here. Raw materials are to be produced by autumn in the An Shan steel center about 50 miles south of Mukden in Manchuria which will be operated by 10,000 Chinese workers.

CAN MISLEAD PARTNER

THERE is a multiplicity of reasons why you should be very wary about doubling an opponent's slam contract. First, your act may cause them to take out from a contract you can beat into another suit or No Trumps which is unstoppable. Second, the information from your double may enable the declarer to play the hand successfully. Third, if you expect to beat it just one trick or so, you can gain very little by the double, whereas you risk handing the declarer a great bunch of points. Fourth, your double must be considered from the standpoint of its influence on your partner's act, especially if he is to be the opening leader. Sometimes it can mislead him.

Peiping Jittery Over Possible U. N. Invasion

By F. K. WU
Central Press Correspondent

HONGKONG — Any possible American or United Nations military move against Communist China to be undertaken by the new Eisenhower administration in the near future is anticipated by the "Central People's government" in Peiping, which may have completed some preparations to cope with the situation. American press reports speculated on the possibility of bombing of the China mainland, naval blockade of the long China coast, invasion of South China by nationalist troops from Taiwan or Formosa and a UN drive to Manchuria from North Korea.

Such reports are seriously taken in Peiping. A recent editorial in the People's Daily, official newspaper of the Peiping Communist regime, said that the campaign against the United States and aid to North Korea is to be continued and strengthened in 1953 and that the Chinese Communists "are ready to pulverize the enemy in any place and manner of advance and attack. It is necessary to strengthen national defense, safeguard the rear and forestall nationalist coastal raids and all subversive activities."

Although Peiping in November last year hinted to India about willingness to resume peace talks on Korea, the Kremlin and Peiping have subsequently agreed that the Korean conflict shall continue for some time unless the UN is prepared to repatriate all Korean and Chinese prisoners of war, who are to be punished as a lesson to all ranks for the sake of discipline and morale and prevention of future surrender.

As the original Peiping readiness to have peace in Korea was later disavowed by Soviet Russia which has favored a continuation of the war, inspired press dispatches from London and Paris asserted that chairman Mao Tse-tung of the Peiping regime and his colleagues are likely to become Titos as predicted from time to time from those quarters.

Such rumors of wishful thinking are set at rest by Premier and Foreign Minister Chou En-lai who said the "Russian-Chinese friendship is unbreakable and that such tie is not only building up the vast reconstruction of the two great countries but also maintains the invincible peace of the Far East and the world."

Alexander S. Panyushkin, the newly-installed Soviet ambassador in Peiping, echoed by saying that "Russian-Chinese friendship is beneficial not only the the U.S.S.R. and China but constitutes a mighty strength hitherto unknown in the history of mankind." The ambassador stressed such strength as "the biggest obstacle to the invasion plans of the United States and other imperialistic powers."

Giving every indication of war preparations, an official Peiping statement enumerated the following projects for the current year:

1—A bigger victory in Korea through more aid to Korea and greater resistance to the United States.

2—Enforcement of a five-year industrial plan as a beginning of national reconstruction and completion of construction projects for 1953.

3—Convocation of a People's representatives assembly to approve a constitution and national construction plan.

Radio Canton recently announced that 1953 marks the change of China from an agricultural country to a highly industrial state. The emphasis is on heavy industries.

Inauguration of heavy industries means the production of tanks, guns and other heavy weapons of war in the interpretation of Chinese observers here. Raw materials are to be produced by autumn in the An Shan steel center about 50 miles south of Mukden in Manchuria which will be operated by 10,000 Chinese workers.

CAN MISLEAD PARTNER

THERE is a multiplicity of reasons why you should be very wary about doubling an opponent's slam contract. First, your act may cause them to take out from a contract you can beat into another suit or No Trumps which is unstoppable. Second, the information from your double may enable the declarer to play the hand successfully. Third, if you expect to beat it just one trick or so, you can gain very little by the double, whereas you risk handing the declarer a great bunch of points. Fourth, your double must be considered from the standpoint of its influence on your partner's act, especially if he is to be the opening leader. Sometimes it can mislead him.

27-Year-Old Rawlings Man Shot By Neighbor

Fred Gutherie In Critical Condition

A 27-year-old father was shot and critically wounded by a neighbor early last night while his wife was in the office of a magistrate, obtaining an assault warrant against him.

The victim, Fred Guthrie of near Rawlings, was in "fair" condition at Memorial Hospital with a bullet wound through the chest.

His next-door neighbor, Junior O'Haver, 30, was being held for questioning in the office of State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher.

Authorities said the shooting took place at about 7 p. m. at the O'Haver home off U. S. 220 in the Fort Hill section two miles south of Rawlings.

Ten miles away, at the office of Trial Magistrate William Meagher at Cresaptown, Guthrie's wife, Viola, was swearing out a warrant for his arrest.

Family Quarrel

Mrs. Guthrie told authorities that her husband had assaulted her during a quarrel at about 5 p. m. She said he also had threatened her father, William Steele, who lives behind the Guthrie home.

State Trooper First Class A. M. Spioch was taking Mrs. Guthrie from Meagher's office to her home to serve the warrant when word of the shooting came over the police radio at 7:15 p. m.

Telephoned Police

Half an hour later, while Spioch and Trooper First Class William F. Baker were at the scene investigating, O'Haver telephoned the LaVale State Police barracks to give himself up.

Police quoted him as saying that he had "just shot Mrs. Fred Guthrie" and that he would wait at the gas station until police arrived.

Lt. W. E. O'Hara, barracks commander, went to the scene and took O'Haver into custody without incident.

After questioning O'Haver last night, Fletcher gave this account of the shooting:

Mrs. Guthrie had left the home following a quarrel with her husband, and had gone to get a warrant for his arrest.

Guthrie took his two - year - old daughter next door to the O'Haver home and asked the O'Havers to watch her for awhile.

Argued and Fought

A short time later, he returned to pick up his child. O'Haver told Fletcher he accused Guthrie of having thrown a stone against the side of his house during the afternoon.

Guthrie denied the accusation and the argument which ensued developed into a fight.

During the tussel, O'Haver said, he picked up his .32 caliber automatic pistol and warned Guthrie to keep away from him.

Ran From House

The wounded man grabbed his daughter and went to the home of a neighbor, where he collapsed while a member of the family went for aid. Then he went to another home in the area, and finally returned to his own house, where police found him when they arrived.

The George Funeral Home ambulance took Guthrie to the local hospital, where he was admitted immediately. In addition to the bullet wound, he had a black eye and contusions of the face, but no fractures or other serious injuries.

Fletcher said O'Haver would be held in County Jail overnight, but that no charge would be filed immediately, pending further investigation.

City Planning Armed Forces Day Activities

Event To Be Held May 16 At Ft. Hill

Cumberland has again this year been designated as one of the cities in the United States in which a major effort will be made in observing Armed Forces Day on May 16.

Mayor Roy W. Eves has appointed Thomas F. Conlon as chairman of the local event. Lt. Commander W. E. Woodson, Jr., instructor- inspector of the local Navy Reserve Units, will be service project officer.

Organizations Invited

Letters have been sent out to all veteran and fraternal organizations and other groups inviting them to participate in the program.

Conlon has invited representatives from all local organizations to attend a meeting Monday, March 23 at 8 p. m. in the postmaster's office, Post Office Building. Purpose of the meeting is to select a committee and formulate plans for the event.

Conlon said yesterday there will be no parade this year as in the past, but a program will be planned to be executed in the Fort Hill High School Stadium.

Plan Demonstrations

A tentative outline of the program, according to Conlon, calls for a number of demonstrations by local military units at the stadium.

The list includes 30-minute demonstrations by the Navy and Marine units followed by an address by a guest speaker.

Following the main address there will be exhibitions by the local National Guard units and the Organized Army Reserve Corps. The Fort Hill High School Band will provide music for the event.

Conlon said Mayor Eves plans to send invitations to mayors and councilmen and other officials of surrounding communities. The public is also invited to witness the observance ceremonies.

Following the stadium events, local veteran organizations and other clubs will hold open houses.

Baptismal Service Planned For Sunday

A full - scale baptismal service will be held at the LaVale Baptist Church Sunday at 7:30 p. m. at which time about 35 candidates will be baptized by immersion.

This will be the first baptismal service of its kind ever held in any LaVale Church. A new baptismal pool has just recently been installed in the relatively new church located on route 40, at Allegany Grove.

Rev. C. F. Frith, pastor, will officiate in the service, assisted by baptismal committee.

Remodeled Baltimore Street Building To Open Monday

A modern, remodeled store building will be opened Monday on Baltimore Street on the site of a disastrous fire February 3, 1952.

It is No. 57-59 Baltimore Street which has been rebuilt by B. K. Lazarus and Mark L. Lazarus Sr.

The first floor of 57 Baltimore Street is being negotiated for by a firm not identified while the first floor of 59 Baltimore Street will be occupied by Webb's Shoe Store.

Half of the second floor over Webb's is being made into a millinery department and alterations room for Lazarus, Inc., women's apparel store, 55 Baltimore Street. Steps will lead from the second floor of Lazarus to these quarters.

The entire third floor of the remodeled building will also be connected with the third floor of the Lazarus store.

For the time being it will be used as an auditorium that will be available for public events, Mark L. Lazarus explained.

In connection with the opening of the new millinery department and Webb's Shoe Store, Lazarus will present a style show Monday at 12:15 p. m. and 6 p. m.

Both levels of the third floor, including the Fountain Room, will be equipped with tables and chairs for the style show viewers,

The second floor Lazarus quarters in the remodeled building measures 20 by 90 feet with the millinery department measuring 20 by 70 feet and the new alterations room, 20 by 20 feet.

The decoration scheme includes white shantung drapes, grass cloth and sky blue, coral, pink, blue green paints.

The John I. Vandergrift Company has the contract for remodeling and rebuilding the burned structure.

Sub-contractors are J. C. Powell, Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company; George C. Jones, painting contractor, and Queen City Electric Company.

At the same time, the John I. Vandergrift Company is making repairs and alterations to the front of the Lazarus Building.

The high scaffolds that are the subject of the sidewalk superintendent's attention on the Main Stem these days were erected to get to some loose brick at the top of the structure.

The brick will be pointed up and woodwork will be painted, the Lazarus brothers explained.

The interior was designed by Morris Lapidus, New York architect-designer.

Md. University May Relax Rule On Registration

Entrance Exams May Be Waived

BALTIMORE, March 5 (AP)—The University of Maryland may open its doors to all graduates of Maryland public high schools without entrance test requirements, President H. C. Byrd said today.

At present, Byrd said, only 48 to 52 per cent of the state's high school graduates are considered for admission to the university. Entrance tests are required in borderline cases.

Byrd said "resentment," "pressure" and "general bad feeling" on the part of parents may force a relaxation of present entrance requirements.

"The parents want to know," he added, "whether our standards are too high or the high school standards are too low."

The practice of admitting all high school graduates is common in other state universities, Byrd said.

As a practical matter, he continued, such a policy would mean only that low-caliber students would meet scholastic obstacles later in their university careers rather than at the start. Many probably would fail, thus keeping classes at about their present size.

"The point to be gained," Byrd added, "is that everyone would be given an opportunity to show what he or she can do."

Woman Pleads For Trial On Extortion Count

Mrs. Files Waives Grand Jury Action

Mrs. Ida Viola Files, 33 Race Street, who has been bound over to the Allegany County Circuit Court grand jury on an extortion charge, yesterday filed a petition in Circuit Court waiving indictment by the grand jury and asking for an immediate trial.

State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher last month charged Mrs. Files with a "felonious attempt to extort money by accusing a person of a crime of an indictable nature."

Clarence Shutter, Mrs. Files' attorney, who filed the petition for Mrs. Files, requested she be tried by the court on a criminal information to be filed by the State's Attorney. Mrs. Files has been free on bond since February 13.

Mrs. Files is accused of trying to extort $500 from Morton W. Peskin, local business man. She implied that she would implicate him in the case of Mrs. Odessa Frances Meister, housewife and Celanese worker, whose battered body was found January 16.

At the time he held a press conference to announce the arrest of Mrs. Files, Fletcher said:

"At no time has the name of this man entered into the Meister investigation — as a suspect or otherwise."

City Delegation Will Meet Ohio Horesman Today

Cumberland city officials and representatives from the Chamber of Commerce will meet the Ohio horseman who is scheduled to stop here this afternoon on his historic ride from Chillicothe, Ohio to Washington in observance of the State of Ohio's sesquicentennial.

The rider, dressed in colonial style, is George Murphy who will enact the historic ride of Thomas Worthington who in 1802 carried the resolution to Washington requesting that Ohio be admitted to statehood.

The courier will be met at The Narrows about 4 p. m. by Mayor Roy W. Eves and Mrs. Eves who is a native of Chillicothe. Mayor and Mrs. Eves resided there for four years early in the mayor's railroad career.

Also with the city delegation will be Anthony Saeli, manager of the Chamber, who has prepared a packet of Cumberland souvenirs which he will present to the Ohio rider. Included in the packet are a community folder, picture post cards, list of historic places here, the 1953 city statistical report, leaflets describing Cumberland's industrial advantages, a copy of the Chamber's official paper, "The Eenterprise," and a number of other leaflets and pamphlets.

The horseman will be escorted through the city to City Hall. Besides the city delegation the messenger will be accompanied by four local horsemen.

After leaving Cumberland the courier will travel to Martinsburg, W. Va., Leesburg, Va., and then to Washington.

Severance Tax Killed By W. Va. House

Maneuver Drops Bill For Year

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 5 (AP)—The West Virginia House handed a final killing blow to Gov. Marland's severance tax proposal today, with 24 Democrats joining the Republican minority in a 56-41 vote against the bill.

Technically, the vote was on a motion by Del. Gosorn (D-Kanawha) to postpone consideration of the measure indefinitely. The outcome means the House cannot again take up the question at this session.

The maneuver to kill the measure was in the form of a motion to postpone indefinitely because the bill, at amendment stage, had not yet reached third reading, the normal time for a passage vote.

The Senate's Finance Committee already had killed that chamber's own version of the proposed severance levy on natural resource production, without letting it get to the Senate floor.

Before the House wrote off the controversial measure for good, it adopted amendments offered by its own Finance Committee to provide exemptions up to certain production levels as a concession to smaller producers of coal, oil, gas and other natural resources.

The House shouted down on another voice vote an amendment by which Del. Francis (D-Kanawha) tried to have the severance tax bill provide also for repeal of the soft drink tax enacted at the 1951 session.

Four million dollars of the estimated 17 million dollars a year which the amended severance tax bill would have raised, was to have been earmarked for establishment and operation of the West Virginia University medical school. The soft drink tax now supports that project.

Progress Noted On Interference With TV Signals

Meeting Planned Next Wednesday

Leaders of Cumberland's television industry will meet next Wednesday at 2 p. m. at City Hall to discuss TV interference problems with an expert of the Radio Corporation of America.

Plans for the meeting were made Wednesday afternoon when officials of the Federal Communications Commission met with representatives of local industries affected by television.

J. Holland Rannells, president of the Potomac Valley Television Company, said Roy Abbott, of RCA's Antennaplex division, will be here Tuesday and Wednesday to make tests of the cable equipment, which FCC tests show is causing some of the interference on TV signals received over antennas.

Reduce Interference

Harry G. Grimes, district line superintendent of the Potomac Edison Company, said the firm cleaned insulators on high tension lines Sunday and that tests indicate power line interference dropped 60 per cent. He promised the firm will continue to work on the problem.

Two FCC officials, H. A. Cohen, engineer in charge of FCC District 4, and A. G. Gilbert, district FCC radio engineer, reported some of the sources of the up to 200 complaints received from here result from interference from cable amplifiers, but that other sources, such as power line and electrical appliances, are also causing some of the trouble.

Will Continue Work

The dealers, who must try to eliminate the complaints from sets they sell, agreed that better shielding, now being undertaken by the cable firm, will help.

They added that when cable leakage is cut to a minimum,, many of the sets now being operated will be of little use, without a cable, since the only signals their antennas pick up are from the cable.

Mayor Roy W. Eves, who called the meeting, praised the cooperation of all the business firms trying to solve the signal interference problem.

FCC officials said some of the complaints received from here are justified and that agency will continue to work on Cumberland's television problems until a solution is found.

4000 License Plates Sold

Just about 4,000 new Maryland license plates for 1953-54 have been sold at the office of Tax Collector Ernest B. Treat at the Court House since the sale began February 24.

Yesterday's total was 479, third highest daily figure since the sale started.

All plates sold at Treat's office bear either the letters GH or GJ plus four numbers runnings from 1001 to 9999. Many motorists already are displaying their new plates which are black with orange lettering.

The new single plate, which must be attached to the rear of the automobile, must be on by midnight Tuesday, March 31.

City Will Begin Clearwell Repair This Morning

Damaged Section To Be Sealed Off

Repairs on the clearwell of the city's water filtration plant will get under way today, William J. Edwards, commissioner of water and electric light, announced last night.

Plans for the rehabilitation of the clearwell, which was damaged Wednesday night when the bottom fell out of the 40-year-old structure, were made yesterday at a conference of city officials with Robert T. Regester, consulting engineer for the city on repairs to the water system.

Commissioner Edwards said the George F. Hazelwood Company, which is constructing six new filters at the dam, will begin installing a retaining wall in the damaged clearwell this morning.

Foundation Undermined

He said investigation showed there was no way to find a firm foundation under the structure. The foundation has been undermined by a leak of several years standing, which officials said has resulted in the loss of about 3,000,000 gallons of water a day.

Officials said it will not be necessary to use the clearwell when the new filters, which have a rated capacity of 6,000,000 gallons a day, are completed. The clearwell is a 375,000 gallon reservoir used to store filtered water which is fed into transmission lines.

While the exact location of the leak was not known, water plant employes had their suspicions that it was in the vicinity of the clearwell, the commissioner stated.

The Water Department officials decided to wait until the additional filters were built before excavating around the clearwell to find the leak, Commissioner Edwards explained.

This work is practically complete, he pointed out, and the exploration had been on the immediate work agenda.

The clearwell was not made of reinforced concrete when it was constructed 40 years ago, the commissioner said. As a result when the water undermined the bottom of it, the whole concrete slab dropped.

Use Old Line

When the 375,000-gallon pond went out of commission Wednesday, George M. Hitchcock, superintendent of the Evitts Creek Water Company, and his assistant, C. L. Brotemarkle, had water cut off leading into it with a valve just installed last week.

Then the water was directed from the filters into the old 36-inch main. Edwards said the department expected the water to be cloudy yesterday, but checks in various parts of the city did not reveal this condition.

The old line had only been used partially the commission said, and when any sudden surge of water is applied to it, there is an inevitable amount of sediment washed off the inner wall.

Yesterday Hitchcock had his employes at the water plant hauling away in two trucks, debris from the side of the clearwell and removing it from the concrete roadway leading to the filtration plant.

The force of the escaping water uprooted a large tree on the hillside, the commissioner said.

Thompson also noted that Carver High School has a higher attendance record than any other school in the county, and it has kept that record for the past two years.

Short-Circuit Causes Fire Scare

Central firemen were called to the Liberty Trust Building yesterday at 2 p. m. when an electrical short circuit caused smoke to fill a third-floor room.

Firemen and Potomac Edison power company workers had difficulty tracing the source through the building's complex wiring system, but it was finally located in a fluorescent light starter, about three hours later.

There was no blaze and no damage resulted from the short circuit.

Central company also answered a false alarm at 5:48 p. m. at the Sloan Glass Company off Market Street. Firemen said an outside box had been pulled, but that there was no fire.

Many Errors Show Up In Tax Returns

The Internal Revenue Bureau in Baltimore reports it already has received about 700,000 federal income tax returns and there has been something obviously wrong with at least 68,000 of them.

The Baltimore office handles returns from Maryland and the District of Columbia.

About 20,000 of the 68,000 faulty returns haven't been signed properly, L. A. Chamberlin, internal revenue director for the area, reported.

The common defect is failure of both husband and wife to sign a joint return, as is required by the income tax law.

But some taxpayers send in returns they haven't signed at all.

The next most common error is failure to send in the withholding statement supplied to workers by their employers.

So far, the bureau has found 248,000 returns from taxpayers who are entitled to refunds, about $15,137,000 worth of refunds. The largest so far this year is $10,000 and the smallest 20 cents.

Refunds of less than a dollar are not made unless the taxpayer insists upon it.

Deadline for the returns on 1952 income is March 15.

Landing Device To Be Tested At Local Port

CAA Will Run Checks On TVOR Equipment

The Civil Aeronautics Administration will conduct tests of TVOR landing equipment at the Cumberland Municipal Airport the last week of March, Mayor Roy W. Eves was advised yesterday.

The city is considering installing the plane landing system, known as terminal visual omnirange, so planes can land and take off in fog and inclement weather, cutting overflights of commercial planes resulting from CAA requirements of a 2,500 foot ceiling and visibility of two miles.

C. F. Horne, CAA administrator, told city officials the federal agency can make portable TVOR equipment available for tests here the last week of this month.

Horne said the test flights will be made as soon as the equipment can be set up and that by the first week in April, the CAA will be able to provide the city with the information it needs concerning the homing device.

He commended the city for its efforts toward real aviation progress in the Cumberland area.

At hearings before the CAB in connection with Allegany Airlines attempt to drop service to Cumberland, city officials promised that a landing system would be installed if service continued, and that efforts would be made to keep runways clear of ice and snow.

A heavy duty truck was purchased for the runway clearing work.

City May Send Civil Service Bill To Assembly

Seek To Iron Out Basic Differences

Unless a compromise can be reached, the City of Cumberland may submit its own proposal for a new Civil Service Bill to the General Assembly.

An attempt was made yesterday, at a meeting of the Mayor and Council and the Civil Service Commission with Thomas N. Berry, attorney for the Police and Firemen's Welfare Association, and Local 812, Municipal Workers Union, to agree on a bill which could be submitted jointly.

A bill sponsored by the two employe groups was presented to Senator Robert B. Kimble Tuesday after revisions were made during a lengthy meeting with city officials. This bill is being printed, officials said, and has not undergone official action.

Yesterday, the Mayor and Council and the Board discussed with Berry the 13 page bill prepared by Thomas B. Finan, city solicitor. It represents revisions made following joint meetings of the Mayor and Council and the Civil Service Board and subsequent revisions worked out by Finan and Berry.

Concepts Are Different

One of the major disagreements is in the scope of the bill. The city insists the Bill should deal with the creation of a Civil Service Board, appointments of employes, rules, classification of workers, examinations, promotions, discharges and the like.

The employe groups want the bill also to include provisions on wages, vacation and sick leave, overtime and holidays, tenure and compensation for injuries and would classify heart disease as an occupational injury for firemen

The city says these issues are part of the city's contract with its employes and should be made and modified from time to time by the Mayor and Council and not incorporated into the basic Civil Service Law.

Conference Planned

City officials insist a Civil Service Bill is not intended to be a labor contract but to set up a Civil Service system and provide for its administration.

Berry reports the men want a comprehensive law which will include all of the legislation, much of it obsolete, now included in the bills affecting Civil Service and the Classified Service.

It was agreed that the city and the men are "not too far apart" on the law if the working conditions are omitted.

Yesterday's meeting ended with Berry promising to consult the workers about compromises asked by the city, and with city officials tentatively agreeing that the city's bill will be sent to Annapolis if the compromises cannot be worked out.

Files Petition Seeking Appeal

Walter Scott, this city, through Attorney John M. Robb, has filed a petition in Allegany County Circuit Court asking the court to issue a writ of mandamus requesting Juvenile Court Magistrate Alban C. Thompson to enter an appeal in his case and to certify the papers in the case to the clerk of Circuit Court.

Associate Judge George Henderson has signed an order directing Magistrate Thompson to show cause within 10 days why the mandamus should not be issued.

Attorney Robb sets forth in the petition that Scott was found guilty by Magistrate Thompson February 6 on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of his minor children and was sentenced to one year in the Maryland House of Correction. This was suspended providing Scott refrains from drinking and is of good behavior.

Subsequently, Scott decided to appeal the conviction to Circuit Court. Robb wrote to Magistrate Thompson requesting entry of the appeal. The attorney said that Thompson wrote "unless bond of $500 is filed there will be no appeal."

Robb charges that no bond is required in the case and Scott should be entitled to appeal as a matter of right.

Optimists Witness Spinning Of Celanese At Luncheon

Celanese yarn was spun outside a Celanese plant for the first time in history Wednesday night at Central YMCA.

The occasion was the weekly dinner-meeting of the Optimist Club of Cumberland. Jack Hancox, an assistant superintendent in the Spinning Division at the Amcelle plant, was explaining acetate yarn production.

During his talk, he picked up an arrangement resembling a grease gun about 18 inches long, turned a crank and spun a length of yarn.

It all looked very simple by contrast with the complex machinery which daily turns out tons of yarn at Amcelle and several other of the Celanese Corporation's plants.

But Hancox knew exactly what he was doing. He has been at Amcelle ever since the first continuous filament acetate yarn was spun in the United States on December 25, 1924, at Amcelle.

A naturalized U. S. citizen who came here from England to set up the first American Celanese plant, Hancox is a longtime expert on spinning technicalities.

So it was fairly easy for him to rig up the single-jet grease gun arrangement which he used in the demonstration.

He used a special spinning solution which he prepared himself, and special oils. The operation, said another celanese official, was just like that at the plant except that the yarn did not solidify completely as it was spun, because no heat cabinet was used.

Until he showed it to the Optimists, Hancox wasn't even sure how well the gadget would work. He had tried it only once, in his office at Amcelle.
